Post-War Program

Army Extension Courses

BY COL. D. R. HUTCHINSON
Director of the Extension Department,
Adjutant General's School

ARMY Extension Courses play an increasingly important part in the military education of our Army. The mission of the Army Extension Program is to provide a progressive non-resident course of military instruction for personnel of all components of the Army of the United States. This mission is accomplished by Extension Departments of the Army's 21 General and Special Service Schools.

The extension program currently in operation at the Adjutant General's School was established in October, 1945. Following World War II, the extension program was carefully analyzed, training needs were determined, and a new program of subcourses was instituted. Today's AG extension courses are prepared as directed by The Adjutant General and the Chief, Army Field Forces. They are kept up-to-date by timely recommendations for new courses and revision of current ones. They conform to Department of the Army doctrine and reflect the latest approved teaching methods. To the greatest extent practicable they parallel the resident instruction of the Adjutant General's School. Thus, through the medium of Army Extension Courses, The Adjutant General is able to send the instruction of the AG School to students residing all over the world.

The basic unit in the extension program is the subcourse. A subcourse is a correspondence course consisting of at least 3 and not more than 9 lessons, and an examination. Subcourses are designed to require an average of eighteen hours of student preparation.

The extension department of the AG School is now administering fifty-two subcourses with additional ones becoming available from day to day. These subcourses are arranged in progressive and logical order to form subcourse series. A subcourse series may consist of any number of subcourses; however, they are designed to require not more than 300 hours' student preparation. A series consists of specialized subcourses prepared by the Adjutant General's School, and common subcourses prepared by other schools. This combination insures a well-rounded military educational program. Examples of common subcourses are: The Leadership Course of the Infantry School; the Map Reading Courses of the Engineer School, and courses in Military Law prepared by The Judge Advocate General.

The extension program of the Adjutant General's School consists of 6 series of (Please turn to Back Page)

Board Meets for USAF Permanent Promotions

The Air Force this week revealed details concerning permanent promotions to lieutenant colonel, major and captain; creation of a generals' eligibility list; and temporary promotion criteria for the ranks of lieutenant colonel and captain.

Official announcement that a board to consider officers for permanent promotions to lieutenant colonel, major and captain was convened Thursday, 2 Dec. at USAF Headquarters confirmed the facts as published in last week's ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

Approximately 1,500 officers will be considered by the board. No promotions will be made, however, prior to 1 Jan. 1949.

Members of this selection board for permanent promotions are Maj. Gen. Howard M. Turner, president; Brig. Gen. Archie J. Old, Jr., Brig. Gen. George H. Beverley, Col. Bayard Johnson, Col. Rex H. Donaldson, Col. Alvin L. Pachynski and Col. Monroe MacCloskey.

As reported in last week's issue, names of the following officers will be submitted to the selection board:

Lieutenant Colonel—All permanent majors who complete 21 years of service for promotion purposes prior to 1 Jan. 1950.

Major—All permanent captains who complete 14 years of service for promotion purposes prior to 1 Jan. 1950.

Captain—All permanent first lieutenants who complete seven years for promotion purposes prior to 1 July 1949.

Under provisions of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947, eligible officers not selected for promotion will be considered "passed over" for the first time. Two such failures to receive promotions will result in an officer's separation from the active list.

Officers eligible for consideration have until 15 Dec. to submit written communications in their own behalf to the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel at Air Force Headquarters, marked "attention: Selection Board Secretariat."

The Air Force said that screening boards will convene in December and January throughout the major commands in the U. S. and overseas to consider officers eligible for promotion to the temporary grade of captain. And in February a board will meet at USAF Headquarters to consider promotions to temporary lieutenant colonel, to be followed by another board to consider promotions to temporary major, now scheduled to convene in March. Approximately 4,000 officers will receive temporary promotions next Spring as a result of these board proceedings.

Eligibility criteria for promotion of officers to temporary major have not been established as yet.

Criteria for promotion to lieutenant colonel and captain are:

Lieutenant Colonel:

(a) All Regular Air Force permanent grade Majors not in the temporary grade of Lieutenant Colonel or higher, including all officers holding recess appointments as permanent majors;

(b) All Regular Air Force permanent grade majors who were reduced without

Army Permanent Lt. Col. List

Late this week, the Army's list of officers recommended for permanent promotion to the rank of lieutenant colonel had not yet returned from the White House.

There is a possibility, however, that it may be available for publication in next week's issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL. When made available, the list will be published in its entirety.

Pay Report Completed

The Commission on Service Pay was scheduled to complete its vital report late this week.

No delay is anticipated between official completion of the report and its submission to Secretary of Defense James Forrestal.

Best guess late this week was that the pay recommendations may be made public around 15 Dec. However, there is a possibility that release of the report may be delayed to afford Defense and Bureau of the Budget officials an opportunity to publish, with the report, their recommendations for legislative action.

It is understood that officials of the Government Printing Office were to be contacted late this week with regard to printing the long-awaited pay document. Previously, it had been speculated that the pay study would be released initially in mimeographed form.

Army Drops Two Pay Day Plan

The Army has abandoned plans to inaugurate twice monthly pay days for officer and enlisted personnel.

The ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL was told that the decision was made after experimental studies showed that too many additional personnel would be required to execute semi-monthly payments.

A special finance section, under command of Capt. George Pranka, was established recently at Ft. Belvoir, Va., to duplicate problems relating to the twice-monthly payments.

Apparently it was the finding of this group, concurring with the analyses of top Finance Department officials, which resulted in the conclusion that the twice-monthly payments should be abandoned.

Believed also to be a factor in this decision was the necessity to plan for income tax deductions which become effective on 1 Jan. Obviously, it would be easier to make these deductions once a month, rather than twice a month, thereby conserving a scarce supply of Finance Department personnel.

The Army's decision to forego the semi-monthly pay days, once tentatively scheduled for adoption around 1 July 1949, probably will mean that the Air Force also will continue monthly pay days.

As explained in last week's issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, the Air Force is duplicating Army pay policies wherever possible. The problem of personnel conservation is also a foremost Air Force concern, a fact which is likely to result in a decision to follow the Army's decision to continue once-a-month payments.

Navy Selection Board Picks 24 for Flag Rank

President Truman has approved a report made this week by a Navy Selection Board which recommended promotion of 24 Naval officers to the rank of Rear Admiral of the Line.

Of those selected, twelve will be promoted immediately. They are:

Thomas Howell Binford — Chief of Staff and Aide to Commander, Hawaiian Sea Frontier.

Burton Beecher Biggs — Chief of Staff and Aide to Commander, Service Force, Pacific.

Walter Ellery Moore — Commander, Service Squadron One, Pacific Fleet.

Lyman Augustus Thackrey — Officer in Charge, Secretary's Committee on Unification.

Grover Budd Hartley Hall — Commander, Carrier Division 14, Atlantic Fleet.

Lorenzo Sherwood Sabin, Jr. — Naval Gun Factory, Wash., D. C.

Walter Gabriel Schindler — Chief of the U. S. Naval Mission, Valparaiso, Chile.

Milton Edward Miles — Chief of Staff to Commander Service Force, Atlantic Fleet.

Harold Davies Baker — Deputy Chief of Public Relations.

Thomas Murray Stokes — Office of Chief of Naval Operations.

Robert Edwin Blick, Jr. — Member, Navy General Board.

George Lucius Russell — Navy Judge Advocate General.

The remaining 12 officers, four of whom are specialists, will be promoted as vacancies occur in the flag ranks. It is anticipated that they will be promoted prior to July 1949, according to the Navy Department. They are:

Robert L. Dennison — Naval Aide to the President.

Frank Thomas Watkins — General Line School, Monterey, Calif.

Tom Burbridge Hill — Office of Chief of Naval Operations.

Carl Frederick Espe — Commander, Destroyer Flotilla One, Pacific Fleet.

Herbert Spencer Duckworth — United States Air Force University, Montgomery, Ala.

Frank Akers — Commander, Carrier Division 15, Pacific.

Delbert Strother Cornwell — Joint Staff of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Aviation Engineering Duty Only

Calvin Mathews Bolster — Office of Naval Research.

In addition to the 24 officers selected for promotion to the rank of Rear Admiral, the Selection Board picked four other officers for continuation on the active list in the rank of Captain, who otherwise would be retired. They are:

Laurence Frye Safford (Engineering

Arizona Daily Star—"If those at the top in the various military services can, with impunity, foment personal strife and needless inter-service rivalry, then those below them can do the same thing. The General Smith incident cannot be allowed to go unpunished. He should be court-martialed and an example made of him. Needed unification of the services calls for more vigorous discipline, not for less. Only by stricter discipline can harmful rivalry be curtailed."

Oakland Tribune—"Fleet Admiral Nimitz' statement on the Tarawa campaign was sound, logical and we hope reassuring to those who suffered personal loss in that desperate and bloody campaign. Tarawa was a bitter and costly campaign but it brought Japan closer to our attack and hastened the final day. It seems to us that is the final answer to General Smith."

Charlotte, N. C., Observer—"In this argument between Marine General Smith and Admiral Nimitz we side with the Admiral. Almost any fifth grade pupil can look at his geography book and see that a base in Australia could not be fully effective with the Japanese entrenched almost on the line between Honolulu and Sydney."

Dallas News—"Where postwar talks reflect grave cracks in unity within the Armed Forces, they serve a warning for the present and the future. Undoubtedly we need far more harmony and unity today among our fighting forces. The nation will be satisfied with nothing less."

Philadelphia Inquirer—"Until such pointless feuds between the services as that revealed by General Smith have been eliminated our Armed Services will not attain the efficiency sorely needed in future national emergencies. There can be no proper teamwork, no close coordination, while each branch of the Service harbors suspicions that the others are out to grab an unfair share of appropriations, or to undermine the prestige of the other services."

Denver Post—"Publication of the memoirs of Marine General 'Howlin' Mad' Smith and others confirms the public's impression that the battles the various services fought with the enemy during the war were only slightly more strenuous than those fought among themselves."

Milwaukee Journal—"If his memoirs are taken for what they are worth, remembering the sort of a man 'Howling Mad' is and was, they may do the new half unified department of defense a world of good and help the Secretary of Defense to get support for the kind of a merger that will be necessary if another war is not to bring a repetition of the interservice confusion and rivalry, and consequently bungling, that 'Howling Mad' says made him so howling mad."

New Chairman to Press for Pay Revision, Income Tax Exemption, Effective Unification and 70-group Air Force

Representative Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), who will become chairman of the House Committee on Armed Services next month, told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL this week that he wants quick action on Service pay.

If he can bring it about, he said, he would like to see the report of the Hook Pay Commission transmitted to Congress early in the session. Whether or not that report so recommends, he favors, and he believes the House will support him, the immediate passage of a resolution restoring the Services special income tax exemptions, which under existing law will be taken from them after 1 Jan. 1949.

Although a former Chairman of the old Naval Affairs Committee, Mr. Vinson has been a strong and staunch advocate of the immediate building up of the Air Force to 70-group strength. That is a "minimum requirement," he said, and his committee is "going to insist on a 70-group Air Force, not just on paper, but in being. That's our baby."

Mr. Vinson voiced his ideas about the lack of unification in the Services by saying: "I hope they will get together and make unification a reality; that they will iron out their frictions. Otherwise it will be the duty of the Committee on Armed Services to prescribe rules and regulations to effect it."

On the subject of possible amendments to the unification Act, Representative Vinson said: "I intend to ask that the Rules of the House be changed so that any amendments to the present law shall be referred to the Committee on Armed Services and not to the Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments."

That Representative Vinson is alive to the need of housing for families of personnel of the armed services was indicated by his saying "Public Works bills will be introduced in the coming session of Congress and they will contain provision for housing for officer and enlisted personnel."

Senator Kenneth McKellar, (D-Tenn.), who is slated for the chairmanship of the Committee on Appropriations in the oncoming Congress, has notified the Armed Services that their financial rating with the new Congress may rest on whether they can show a financial dividend on unification. He stated that he is interested in the degree of "savings by elimination of duplications and overlapping" and that his committee "is going to get to the bottom of this" through "full and complete hearings."

Although Senator Tydings (D-Md.) who is slated to become chairman of the Senate Committee on Armed Services, believes that inter-service relations will be smoothed out in time, and does not want any investigation unless specifically directed by Congress, there is every evidence that demands for a special study will arise in that chamber.

Senator Hill said: "The time has come for Secretary of Defense Forrestal to knock some heads together, or, if need be, to knock some heads off, to carry out the intentions of the law passed by Congress to give us unification in fact and not in fancy. The spirit and the intent of the act have not been carried out."

Voicing the belief that the United States is "confronted by two dangerous situations" because of the lack of harmony among the Services, Senator Hill said the first danger is that "we do not have a team of Armed Forces which Congress felt was necessary for defense. The three separate Services are fighting one another." And, "The second danger is those fellows are asking so much money without unification that it is a threat to our economy. We simply cannot push up the cost of defense without doing grave damage to this Nation's economy."

Calling attention to the post World War I national debt, Senator Hill said: "Here we are spending in one year more than half the national debt for 1918 and we still do not have a unified fighting force. It cannot be tolerated. It would be interesting to know how much of the money we give the armed services is used in their fight against each other rather than in building a team to give us the defense which the unification act contemplated."

If Senator Hill's threat to "raise Cain until there is real unification of the armed forces" is carried out his attitude will run counter to that of Senator Thomas (D-Utah) who believes that "unification can come only through education and not through fussing."

WACs in Food Service Field

As results of the Army's first career field examinations—those for Food Service Personnel—were being tabulated, with promotions scheduled to be made before Christmas, it was revealed that members of the Women's Army Corps were included in those taking the examinations.

It is understood that the WACs will be barred from the bakery and butchery promotion ladders because of the necessity for lifting heavy objects, but will be included in other Food Service activities.

Once established in a food career field, the WACs will be expected to meet identical standards as male personnel and will vie on an equal basis for promotions.

This is another reason why WACs will not be assigned to bakery and butchery duties, where they would be placed at a handicap.

To Count All Airmen

The Air Force, to determine its exact military strength, will hold a complete head count of all personnel on 10 Jan.

General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff, has instructed that reassignments, transfers, leaves, passes and furloughs will be restricted to the minimum for one week, 3 to 10 Jan.

On 10 Jan., at 1000 local time, a muster will be conducted by each AF unit. Details of the procedure to be adopted are published in AF Letter 35-142.

AF Community Chest Report

The Department of the Air Force contributed $50,598.47 to the Community Chest Federation Campaign, achieving a 97.6 per cent participation record and exceeding the quota of $50,061.

Included in the above statistics are contributions from Bolling AFB, Andrews AFB and Military Air Transport Service. The Office of Chief of Staff had 100 per cent participation and pledged 153.5 per cent of its quota.

No Successor for Adm. Leahy

From present indications it appears that Fleet Adm. William D. Leahy, USN (Ret.) will, for some years, hold the distinction of having been the only officer to occupy the post of Chief of Staff to the Commander-in-Chief.

Admiral Leahy, who had been the President's Chief of Staff since 1942, will return to private life next month. After his re-retirement, it is understood that the President will not replace him. This, it is said, is being done at the suggestion of Admiral Leahy himself.

Recently, one of the Admiral's principal duties has been to supervise the morning "briefing" of the President on world military and political affairs. Much of the actual briefing has been done by Sidney W. Souers, Secretary of the National Security Council and a former rear admiral in the Naval Reserves. Admiral Souers will continue to handle the morning briefing and, in that respect, will carry on Admiral Leahy's duties.

It is recalled that Admiral Leahy was made Chief of Staff to the President in the early months of the war, when, with the lessons of Pearl Harbor fresh in the minds of the people, great stress was being placed upon the necessity for coordinating the Armed Services and enforcing unified action. President Roosevelt wanted one man to give him balanced views and to represent him on the newly organized Joint Chiefs of Staff. Admiral Leahy, who has returned to active duty after having earned his retirement a month before Germany marched into Poland, was his selection and President Roosevelt's satisfaction with his choice was evidenced by his continuation in that post throughout the war, as well as his subsequent retention by President Truman.

Now, with unification a law, a Secretary of Defense representing all the Services in the President's cabinet, and a "joint staff" actively functioning under the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Admiral Leahy, and the President, apparently feel that existing conditions do not require a special Chief of Staff for the Commander-in-Chief. That Congress, too, foresaw this situation is evidenced by the way in which they phrased, in the National Security Act, the membership of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. In it they included "the Chief of Staff to the Commander-in-Chief, if there be one."

Good Will Flight to Peru

A good will flight of Air Force aircraft was sent to Lima, Peru, 27 Nov. to participate in Peru's annual day of tribute to a national flying hero, Jorge Chavez. Comprising the flight were a squadron of F-82 Twin Mustangs and a B-17 Flying Fortress of the Caribbean Air Command.

The occasion marked the 27th annual observance by Peru of the day on which the body of Chavez was returned to his native land from France.

Jorge Chavez established the international altitude record for Class "C" aircraft in September, 1910, at Issy-Moulineaux, France, when he piloted a Blériot monoplane, powered by a rotary engine, to an altitude of 8,485 feet. In the same month, he was killed when his plane crashed while landing at Briga, Switzerland, following an attempt to break his own record. The Peruvian Central Flying School is named in his honor.

No Cabinet Changes Now

Secretary of Defense Forrestal will remain in that post at least for the time being, President Truman said at his press conference 2 Dec. The President said that he had asked Mr. Forrestal, as he had General Marshall and other members of his cabinet, to remain and that he was willing to do so. This led to the statement that there would be no changes in the cabinet at this time.

The President recalled that the newsmen had asked similar questions in 1945, and said that the situation would adjust itself now as it had then. While Mr. Truman did not point out in so many words, the reporters remembered that the situation adjusted itself then by an almost complete turn over in the Cabinet within a period of months.

Warrant Officers

The supplemental list of warrant officer appointments is reported nearly completed and may be ready for release next week.

It is expected that approximately 500 names will appear on this list, which will be published in full by the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL as soon as it is made available. Both Army and Air Force warrants are reported on the supplemental list.

New P&A Chief Arrives

Maj. Gen. Edward H. Brooks, USA, formerly Commanding General of the Caribbean Command, this week reported for duty with the Personnel and Administration Division, Army General Staff.

On 31 Dec., he will succeed Lt. Gen. Willard S. Paul, USA, who is retiring, as chief of the P&A Division.

Admiral Russell, who has been serving in his present rank since Nov., 1945, was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1921. During World War II, he commanded Submarine Squadron 10 in the Pacific, and for his services during that command was awarded the Legion of Merit. Later, in lieu of a second Legion of Merit, he was awarded a Gold Star for service as Aide and Flag Secretary to the Commander-in-Chief of the U. S. Fleet.

Captain Dennison graduated from the Naval Academy in 1923, and served during World War II as commanding officer of the USS Pennsylvania. In 1947 he was assigned to command of the battleship Missouri, where he served until his assignment as Presidential Aide in Feb., 1948. Captain Dennison was the only officer selected from the Class of 1923; all others were from the classes of 1921B and 1922.

Five of the twenty-four officers are aviators, one is a submariner, and a large percentage of the others hold Master of Science degrees.

Recreation for Soldiers

The day of an Army with television sets in day rooms, illuminated athletic fields for night games, traveling Soldier Show units and on-post skeet shoots, skating rinks and more tennis and volley ball courts already is here.

This was revealed at a conference of Special Services Officers in Washington this week, conducted by Maj. Gen. Russell B. Reynolds, Chief of Special Services.

Maj. Robert Montondo, Special Services Officer at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., said every company day room at that post will have its own television set by 1 Jan. 1949. Funds for purchase of the T.V. sets come through the Central Post Welfare Funds which receive a major share of the profits of Exchanges and Motion Pictures.

Col. W. G. Skelton, Third Army Special Services Officer, told of successes with a Soldier Show project in which units of six to eight trained soldiers are sent to posts to train other soldiers in the production of shows at post level.

Maj. Warren A. Minton revealed that a new 5,000-capacity athletic stadium is being built at Ft. Jackson, S. C. and Col. Roger W. Whitman, First Army, said four major posts in that command will have lighted athletic fields for night games in the next few months.

Lt. Col. Henry I. Szymanski, Fifth Army, told of more than 170 entries for the Army Song Contest. At the conference, General Reynolds introduced Lt. Col. Jesse S. Burbage, recently returned from Korea, who will succeed Colonel Szymanski, ordered to duty at Camp Carson, Colo.

Maj. Monival A. J. Carins of Camp Hood, Tex., reported plans for a skating rink on that post and said an indoor rifle range and a 14-table billiard hall are popular projects.

Col. Fay Ross, Sixth Army, and Maj. Julian C. Reeder, Ft. Ord, Calif., recounted how soldiers are taxing Special Service facilities.

Lt. Col. William F. Nee, Special Services Officer for Military District of Washington; Lt. Col. William R. Donaldson of G-1, Second Army; Col. Arthur W. Gustafson, United States Military Academy; Col. Allen D. Raymond, Ft. Belvoir, Va.; Maj. Herman Littman of MDW and Maj. Frank Gensburg of Fourth Army, were among others reporting Special Services programs. Col. N. L. Callish represented the Air Force Special Services, and Capt. R. W. Cavenagh, the Welfare and Recreation program of the Navy Department.

Highlights of General Reynolds introductory address to the conference included a résumé of the steps taken by The President and The Secretary of Defense in establishing advisory committees for religious, moral and recreational guidance to the Armed Forces. The increasing interest and awareness of senior civilian and military officials of the Army as to the importance of off-duty entertainment and recreation is of greatest encouragement, General Reynolds said.

He told the conferees that while a greater flow of athletic and recreational equipment from appropriated fund sources is now possible, the bulk of funds for the support of the Special Services program (for Fiscal Year 1950) will come from nonappropriated funds—dividends earned and paid by the Exchange Service and Motion Picture Service. He pointed out that Army policy on this matter is to use profits from the Exchange to provide funds for welfare and recreation. Further, General Reynolds commented on the excellent work of the Special Services School at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., whose commander, Col. Roger W. Goldsmith, was at the conference sessions in Washington, and said that 200 Second Lieutenants are scheduled to take the recreation course there in the next eight months. These officers on graduation will be available as assistants to highly trained Special Services officers.

Information School Opens

Opening exercises for four new classes comprising a record total of 422 students from the Army, Navy, and Air Force was held 1 Dec. at The Armed Forces Information School at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Principal speaker was Lt. Gen. Raymond S. McLain, USA, Chief of Information, who was introduced by Brig. Gen. E. J. McGaw, Post Commanding General and School Commandant.

Reserve Retired Pay

Army officials said late this week that regulations concerning non-disability retirement pay for Reservists and National Guardsmen completing 20 years creditable service and who have reached the age of 60 may be available for publication in next week's issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

Similarly, Navy sources reported that a letter of instruction is being hurried through channels from the Bureau of Personnel, to the Judge Advocate General, Chief of Naval Operations and then to the Secretary of Navy for final approval.

Service personnel experts were able to accelerate final work on regulations as a result of the Comptroller General's decisions on eight disputed points. The decisions of the Comptroller General were reported in detail in last week's issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

For the Army, it is believed that two regulations will be published—one covering ORC personnel and the other for National Guardsmen. The two documents are expected to be quite similar.

The ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL has been informed that the Army regulations will probably prescribe a limit of 360 creditable points per year.

One development reported under discussion is the awarding of one point for every three hours of correspondence work completed.

As explained previously, the Army likely will award credits for retirement on the same basis that credits are given for promotion. These are described in Circular 71, 1947, and Circular 201, 1948.

Notify the Army and Navy Journal promptly of any change of address.

Gen. Prichard to Head PID

Brig. Gen. Vernon E. Prichard, Director of Operations, Plans, Organization and Training for the European Command, will succeed Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore as Chief, Public Information Division, Department of the Army, about 1 Feb.

General Moore has been named Commandant of the U. S. Military Academy, succeeding Maj. Gen. Maxwell Taylor, whose new post has not been announced.

General Prichard, formerly commander of the 1st Armored Division, is slated to Europe about 8 Dec. and will be assigned to the Public Information Division upon his arrival.

He is a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, class of 1915, and served on the Mexican Border before World War I and in France and Germany with the A.E.F. and the Army of Occupation. In World War II he served in Italy and the European Theater.

NG Official Hits General Staff

In a strongly worded statement, Maj. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh, President of the National Guard Association, this week demanded that the General Staff "cease its efforts to divide and destroy the National Guard through any such program as the 18/25 Division Program which is unrealistic and impossible of achievement."

General Walsh asserted also that "the Guard is more than fed up with the innuendoes and downright falsehoods emanating from the Pentagon in connection with the Gray Board Report."

General Walsh appealed for "realistic thinking" with regard to the civilian components and said: "The Guard feels that the troop basis of the Guard and ORC should be reexamined in the light of reality, notably in view of the lack of UMT, and has reason to believe that members of the ORC share these sentiments. The Guard feels strongly," he continued, "that the time has come when something definite must come out of the Department of the Army and the Congress in connection with housing, for it cannot and will not assume the entire burden out of State funds."

With regard to the Gray Board, General Walsh added:

"It is high time that the Congress take steps to end the attempts to divide the civilian components and insist that the time devoted to such efforts, and efforts to destroy the Guard or incorporate it into a single Federal Militia, cease, and honest effort be made to implement the provisions of the Approved Policies. It is also high time that there be an end to secret memoranda within the Pentagon relative to the Gray Board and other matters which are completely adverse with the public statements of the individuals concerned."

Major Fogg Joins Republic Staff

Maj. Robert S. Surgeon General's Greeting

Maj. Gen. Raymond W. Bliss, Surgeon General of the Army, has issued the following Christmas greeting:

"May the kindly spirit of Christmas continue with our Medical Department during the coming year. With this spirit of good will we will give our best to those entrusted to our care. My official and personal greetings for all happiness go to our patients and all of the Army Medical Department throughout the world."

Davidson Honors Gen. Simmons

On Nov. 6, 1948, at a Convocation Assemblage held at Davidson College, (N.C.), the President, Dr. John Cunningham, presented an alumni "Citation of Merit" to Brig. Gen. James Stevens Simmons, USA-Ret., Dean of the Harvard School of Public Health, for outstanding contributions in the fields of Preventive Medicine and Public Health. Previously General Simmons received his Bachelor of Science degree at Davidson in 1911, and was awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Science in 1937.

Gen. Eisenhower Appointed

Appointment of General Dwight D. Eisenhower to a commission of 20 educators which will make a study next year of the role of the public schools in the face of continuing international tensions has been announced.

General Eisenhower, president of Columbia University, will serve on the Educational Policies Commission of the National Education Association and the American Association of School Administrators.

UNITED STATES ARMYNG Association Meeting

The executive council of the National Guard Association and the organization's standing and special committees held a three-day session in Washington this week and reaffirmed the determination to fight the Gray Board's recommendation for a Federalized Guard with all possible resources.

Additionally, the council reendorsed Universal Military Training and planned to seek legislative action; agreed to seek a National Guard of from 375,000 to 400,000 men during the next fiscal year; mapped plans for a $50,000,000 armory program for the Guard and ORC; and tentatively decided to hold the next annual conference in October 1949 at Montgomery, Ala.

The National Guard Association officials also declared themselves "not entirely satisfied" with the Air Force's plan to train Guardsmen as aviation cadets. These officials maintain that the plan, as now established, would take Guardsmen away from their units for two years—one year for training and one year for service with the Air Force. They say the one year active service requirement should be modified.

To succeed Maj. Gen. H. D. Russell, Commanding General of the 48th Division, Maj. Gen. Sumter L. Lowry, Commanding General of the 51st Division, was elected to the council as representative of the Third Army Area. General Russell is from Georgia; General Lowry, from Florida.

Army Judge Advocates Confer

The Staff Judge Advocate of each of the Army's 87 General Court Martial jurisdictions and representatives of the overseas Theater Judge Advocates will attend a conference on the amended Articles of War and the new Manual for Courts-Martial to be held in the JAGO from 6 to 10 Dec. The revised articles and the new manual will become effective on 1 Feb. 1949.

The visiting Judge Advocates will be welcomed in a group meeting on 7 Dec. by The Judge Advocate General, Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Green. Lieutenant Colonel Charles L. Decker, Chief of the provisional division which prepared the initial draft of the manual, will explain the overall problems considered and the method of preparation of the manual. Thereafter, the group will be divided into four sections, each of which will meet in seminar on each part of the manual with the officer who initially prepared the particular part.

Officers conducting seminars will be Maj. Waldermar A. Solf, executive of the division, Majors W. C. Conley, Gilbert G. Ackroyd, J. L. Brack, Paul L. Robblee, and Paul A. Davis. Special seminars will be conducted by Col. Birney M. VanBenschoten, JAG Res., who worked in liaison with the division.

The entire project has been carried out under the supervision of Brig. Gen. Hubert D. Hoover and Col. William P. Connally, Jr., Assistant Judge Advocate General in charge of military justice matters.

It is expected that instructions in the changes in the administration of Military Justice required by changes in law will be conducted throughout the Army in January after the new manual is distributed.

Joins Eighth Army Staff

Col. William P. Withers, Fifth Army Director of Information, will leave for Japan shortly to join the staff of Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, former Fifth Army Commander, who, last September, assumed command of the Eighth Army, with headquarters in Tokyo.

Doctors Protest Army Action

In its only resolution made public following the second annual interim conference, the American Medical Association this week scored the recent Army reorganization which placed the Director of Logistics over the technical services, including the Medical Department.

The AMA's House of Delegates charged that under the new Army scheme a layman "directs and controls the operations and administrative activities of the heads of the technical services," which means that a layman untrained in any type of medical care is directing the professional medical program of the Department of the Army."

In Washington, however, Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall emphasized that "the historic position of the Surgeon General as direct adviser to the Secretary and the Chief of Staff still remains unchanged despite the recent top-level reorganization of the Army."

An amendment to the reorganization order will state: "In matters of standards of health and medical care of the troops and the utilization of professional medical personnel, the Surgeon General shall have direct access to the Secretary of the Army and the Chief of Staff."

Army Circular Number 342, the reorganization directive, placed the Surgeon General's Office under the General Staff Director of Logistics for operation and administration, Mr. Royall pointed out. This was not intended to change his position with respect to the Secretary and Chief of Staff, but rather to centralize everyday functions of all the Technical Services—of which the Medical Department is one—under a single supervising official, the Secretary explained. This aspect of the reorganization will not be changed by the new amendment, according to Mr. Royall.

Misunderstanding over the relationship between The Surgeon General on the one hand and the Secretary and Chief of Staff on the other, Mr. Royall said, was called to his attention by Dr. Harold R. Hennessy, Secretary of the American Medical Association's Council on National Emergency Medical Service. Mr. Royall told Dr. Hennessy that the reorganization circular had not been intended to alter the policy set forth in April, 1945 by the then Secretary of War, Henry L. Stimson, in these words:

"I consider that the care of the sick and wounded and the character of the hospitalization in the Army are matters for the direct responsibility of the Secretary of War; also that The Surgeon General should be his principal adviser in regard to these vital matters. To this end I wish it clearly understood that I am to have direct access to him and he to me on such matters whenever either of us deems it to be essential."

This statement, Mr. Royall said, was a declaration of long-standing Army policy and was reaffirmed in December, 1945 by Mr. Stimson's successor, Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson.

Submarine Role

On of the first and most fundamental tasks facing the Navy in any future war "will be to keep the sea lanes open by beating back a determined submarine onslaught," according to Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations.

In an address before the Manchester (N. H.) Community Forum this week, the CNO declared that "if it was difficult to dodge a torpedo in the last war, it will take a combination aquatic acrobat and miracle man to do it in the future."

Combined air and surface craft are our only guarantee of a steady two-way flow of men and materials "in the face of submarine attacks," Admiral Denfeld said. He pointed out that "twenty-five percent of our scientific effort during the last war was devoted to the development of anti-submarine measures," and added that "this must be continued and increased if possible in the face of improvements in submarine design." One of our most effective anti-submarine weapons "may be an anti-submarine submarine," he said.

Drawing tentative conclusions about the recent Navy exercises at Argentia, Newfoundland, the CNO stated that generally "the modern submarine is much more than a match for surface ships using the anti-submarine equipment of the last war. Also we can say that ships with modern equipment are not only capable of standing up to the new submarines, but actually have an edge on them." He stressed the fact that the Navy "lost" only one of the eight ships equipped with modern devices.

At present the Navy is working on the development of troop carrying, cargo carrying, and tanker submarines, Admiral Denfeld revealed. Submarines would be assigned various roles in the event of war, he said. "First of all they would go after the enemy's shipping, which would be considerable in spite of the fact that our enemy would be predominately a land power dependent more on internal lines of communication. In addition submarines would be assigned to radar picket duties. They would serve as advance sentinels to warn of any enemy air approach over the ocean areas. They would also be used on reconnaissance missions, particularly for our amphibious forces. They would be used for air-sea rescue, which in the last war saved so many trained lives and kept the morale of our airmen at a high level."

Richard M. McKenna, Chief Machinist's Mate, was announced this week as winner of the U. S. Naval Institute's Special Enlisted Prize Essay Contest for 1948.

Mr. McKenna took first prize among 27 entries with an essay entitled "The Post-War Chief Petty Officer: A Closer Look." Mr. Miller's essay was entitled "The Less Tangible Factors."

The first post-war board to select line officers for temporary promotion to the grade of captain convened this week.

The board will select a total of 269 unrestricted line captains, 22 officers for engineering duty, eight officers for aeronautical engineering duty, and seven officers for special duty. It is composed as follows:

Rear Adm. Roscoe E. Schuirmann, President.

Rear Adm. Glenn B. Davis.

Rear Adm. Calvin T. Durgin.

Rear Adm. Allan R. McCann.

Rear Adm. Clifton A. F. Sprague.

Rear Adm. Fred D. Kirtland.

Rear Admirals Charles Wellborn, Jr., Apollo Soucek, and Byron H. Hanlon will be additional members of the board for action on unrestricted and special duty line officers.

Rear Admirals Grover C. Klein, Frederick E. Haebeler and David H. Clark will be board members for action on officers designated for engineering duty.

Rear Admirals Charles A. Nicholson II, Lucien M. Grant and Lloyd Harrison will be members of the selection board for aeronautical engineering duty.

Officers eligible for consideration by the board include all line commanders, except those serving in appointments of limited duration in the grade of commander, who will have five years' service in grade or in a higher grade as of 30 June 1949 computed from the date of rank as commander. Also eligible are commanders meeting the above requirements who are now serving in appointments of limited duration in the grade of captain.

The promotion zone in the grade of commander will include Hayes E. Irons and all officers senior to him.

By law the number of permanently commissioned officers who may be selected from below the promotion zone in grades below captain may not exceed five per cent of the total number the board may select.

Navy Mutual Aid

The Navy Mutual Aid Association's extra hazardous duty rates for naval aviators and submariners will be continued through 1949, according to a recent announcement. The text of ALNAV 76, which contained the information, is as follows:

"BUARD directors, Navy Mutual Aid Association, has authorized extra hazardous duty rates now effective, $5.30 for aviation members and $2.50 for submarine members, continued through 1949. Extra hazardous duty allotments now active will be automatically continued through 1 Dec. 1949. Disbursing officers, Navy and Marine Corps, will change pay records to indicate extension of expiration date through 1 Dec. 1949 and continue checkage at present rate.

"Regular permanently commissioned (male and female) and warrant officers of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard on active lists, not over forty-five and one-half years age, midshipmen Navy and cadets Coast Guard are eligible to apply for membership. Confirmation of permanent officer status, if not shown in Navy Register July 1947, should accompany applications."

Consult on Nuclear Power

Capt. John E. Fradd, USN, Officer in Charge, Department of Naval Engineering, and Professor Austin R. Frey, Chairman, Department of Physics and Electronics, U. S. Naval Postgraduate School, Annapolis, Md., visited the laboratories of the General Electric Company, Schenectady, N. Y., 29 Nov. They consulted with the officials of that Company on the further development of the Nuclear Power curriculum of the Postgraduate School.

More Navy Offices to Pentagon

Ten major offices of the Navy Department will be moved to the Pentagon this month in the continuing effort to place top commands of all three services under the same roof.

Heading the list of officers who will make the move are Vice Admiral William M. Fechteler, Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Personnel, and Vice Admiral Arthur D. Struble, DCNO for Operations.

Others who will follow are five Assistant Chiefs of Naval Operations: Rear Admiral W. F. Boone, ACNO for Strategic Plans; Rear Admiral C. B. Momsen, ACNO for Undersea Warfare; Captain L. A. Bachman, ACNO for Fleet Operations; Rear Admiral E. T. Woolridge, ACNO for International affairs; and Rear Admiral Ralph S. Riggs, ACNO for Naval Reserves.

In addition, the Chief of Naval Intelligence, Rear Admiral T. B. Inglis; the Director of Operational Readiness, Rear Admiral Robert P. Briscoe; and Brigadier General Merwin H. Silverthorn, Marine liaison officer, Office of the Chief of Naval Operations, will make the move along with their respective staffs.

Rear Adm. Thomas L. Sprague, Chief of Naval Personnel, will also be provided office space at the Pentagon.

Approximately 100,000 square feet of additional office space has been provided at the Pentagon for use of the Navy. The move, scheduled to begin on 15 December, is expected to be completed before Christmas.

Addresses Reserve Officers

"Joint Operations" was the theme of an address made this week by Vice Admiral R. B. Carney, Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Logistics, before members of the Reserve Officers Association in New York City.

"The efforts toward eliminating duplication, making better common use of facilities, and statistically determining the merits and demerits of parallel systems and activities wherever they exist are worthy objectives," Admiral Carney said, "but in reality they are only corn plasters which do nothing about correcting the ill-fitting shoe which causes the trouble."

He pointed out that "unification from the bottom up is better than no unification at all, but until complete unification at the top is a fait accompli, we will be working on the effect rather than the cause."

In the process of unification, strong conflicting philosophies have had to be reconciled, according to Admiral Carney. "Men who have spent their lives with some particular arm of the service or with some particular specialty, however well versed they may be in that specialty," he said, "are certain to lack, in some measure, an appreciation of the capabilities and limitations of other arms, weapons, specialties."

Such conflicts will continue, Admiral Carney added, until a type of military man is produced who has a real and practical experience in all arms and services. To achieve this goal, the Deputy CNO suggested the assignment of "young officers to duties in the other services." Such duties, he said, "must at least have a modicum of balance between theory, practice, and planning."

Admiral Carney cited steps in this direction which have already been taken and added that, perhaps, in another decade, the "bickering" which is now so frequently deplored may dissolve under the reagent of the better understanding and tolerance which is bred by understanding."

Two hundred reserve Medical Officers will report at the Naval Medical School, National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., on 6 Dec. for the beginning of a five-day Special Course in Medical Aspects of Special Weapons and Radioactive Isotopes, the first of a series of such courses.

Capt. Melville J. Aston, MC, USN, Medical Officers in Command of the Medical School, announced that the special teaching staff includes civilian consultants to the Army and Navy, representatives from the Atomic Energy Commission and Oak Ridge, Tenn., as well as naval medical officers who specialize in the use of radioactive isotopes. As part of the course, there will be visits to the cyclotron at the Carnegie Institute at Chevy Chase, the National Cancer Institute, and the National Institute of Health.

Speakers from the Naval Medical Center include Rear Adm. Morton D. Willcutts, Medical Officer in Command of the Center, Captain Aston, and Capt. C. F. Behrens, Medical Officer in Command of the Naval Medical Research Institute. From the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery: Rear Adm. C. A. Swanson, the Surgeon General; Rear Adm. Lamont Pugh, Deputy and Assistant Chief of the Bureau; Rear Adm. C. J. Brown, Assistant Chief of the Bureau for Research, and Rear Adm. Bertram Groesbeck, Assistant Chief of the Bureau for Aviation and Operational Medicine. Rear Adm. Thomas B. Inglis, Chief of Naval Intelligence and Rear Adm. W. S. Parsons, Director of Atomic Defense will also speak. Other speakers of the Medical Corps include Captains H. H. Haight, Oscar Schneider, Charles W. Shilling, and William C. Baty.

Sustained Ram-Jet Flight

The longest sustained flights ever made by pilotless aircraft powered by ram-jet engines have been accomplished by almost wingless missiles tested by the Navy at the Naval Air Missile Testing Center at Point Mugu, Calif.

Piloted by remote control and tracked by radar, the missiles have made several sustained controlled flights of more than 10 minutes. Free flight was obtained by launching from a mother airplane and flight information was telemetered back to a ground receiving station by an electronic "brain."

The ram-jet engine was designed purposely at Navy direction to operate the missile at subsonic velocities.

The missile is controlled in flight from a ground station, but may be pre-set to perform normal flying functions, such as level flight, dives, banks and turns. Radar is used to follow the conventional rudder and elevator, but uses spoiler ailerons for lateral control. The missile is completely instrumented to telemeter to a ground receiving station such data as speed, altitude, brake drag, controllability, engine operation and other vital information.

The ram-jet has no static thrust and therefore cannot take-off under its own power, but must be given velocity before launching. In the tests at Point Mugu, the missile was taken aloft and released by a specially modified P-61 Black Widow fighter loaned by the U. S. Air Force.

Adm. Holloway on School Board

The Superintendent of the U. S. Naval Academy, Rear Adm. James L. Holloway, Jr., U.S.N., has been notified by the Bishop of Maryland, the R. Rev. Noble C. Powell, of his election to the Board of Trustees of St. James School, near Hagerstown, Md.

Admiral Holloway's interest in St. James stems from the excellent record of its graduates who have entered the Naval Academy, which group includes Lt. J. L. Holloway, III, USN, USNA '43.

Lt. Ischinger Honored

Lt. Eric Ischinger, Jr., USN, has recently been awarded the Letter of Commendation with commendation Ribbon and combat Distinguishing Device for meritorious service aboard the USS Cleveland in World War II. The award was made by Capt. Herman A. Spanagel, USN, Superintendent U. S. Naval Postgraduate School, Annapolis, Md., where Lt. Ischinger is on duty.

New Wind Tunnel Speed Record

The U. S. Navy came up with a development this week which places it "well in the forefront of what may prove to be the most important field of ordnance work in our generation," according to Dr. Ralph D. Bennett, Technical Director of the Naval Ordnance Laboratory at White Oak, Md.

The development was a wind-tunnel air speed of 5.18 times the speed of sound.

The record air flow, equivalent to 3,960 miles an hour under ordinary conditions, was set under a -377 Fahrenheit temperature in a 16-inch square working section of the modernized German supersonic wind tunnels, captured at Kochel, Bavaria, by American forces in World War II.

Dr. Bennett said that the new high speed "is one of the first important steps in the Navy's development of weapons for use at supersonic speed." He pointed out "that most nations, including our own, are doing extensive work in developing aircraft to fly at or above the speed of sound," and that projectiles fired from or at them "obviously must travel at several times the speed of sound if they are to be effective."

The fact that the Navy has achieved a record speed at such an early stage of the Naval Ordnance Laboratory's program, "is an encouraging and highly significant development," he said.

Preliminary research on the German V-2 rocket was done in the same tunnels, in which the highest speed previously achieved was 4.38 times the speed of sound. The tunnels were dismantled and shipped to the U. S. in Oct., 1945. Earlier they had been officially assigned to the Navy by a decision of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. They were modernized and re-erected at White Oak according to design plans worked out by Mr. Lyman C. Fisher of NOL's Research Department. Mr. Fisher supervised the entire operation. The tunnels were placed in operation in July, 1948.

Research in aerodynamics at the Naval Ordnance Laboratory is under the general supervision of Dr. Lynn H. Rumbaugh, Chief of the Research Department, and Dr. Raymond J. Seeger, head of the Mechanics Division. The Laboratory, which operates directly under the Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, is under the command of Rear Adm. Frank E. Beatty.

Aeronautical Medical Equipment

Representing the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery at the dedication of the new Aeronautical Medical Equipment Laboratory at the Philadelphia Naval Base on 1 Dec., were Rear Adm. C. A. Swanson, the Surgeon General; Rear Adm. Bertram Groesbeck, Assistant Chief of the Bureau for Aviation and Operational Medicine; Capt. H. G. Shepler, Director, Aviation Medicine; and Capt. C. A. Shilling, Director of Medical Science Division of Office of Naval Research. All were guests of Rear Admiral Pennoyer, Commander, Naval Air Material Center, and Capt. J. R. Poppen, Superintendent of the Laboratory.

After Admiral Swanson, the principal speaker, was introduced by Admiral Groesbeck, he spoke on the close liaison between the Bureau of Aeronautics and the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery in connection with the work performed at this particular laboratory.

Awards to PG Officers

Four Officers at the U. S. Naval Post-graduate School at Annapolis, Md., received awards last week for meritorious conduct as members of the Naval Service during World War II. Air Medals were awarded to Comdr. R. W. Arndt, Lt. Comdr. R. E. Huddleston and letters of Commendation with Combat Distinguishing Devices were awarded to Lt. Comdr. B. T. Frana and Lt. Eric Ischinger. Capt. H. A. Spanagel, USN, Superintendent of the U. S. Naval Postgraduate School made the Presentations.

Naval Aviation Cadet

A new precedent was set recently when the first enlisted man to become a Naval Aviation Cadet was sworn in at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla., by Rear Adm. J. W. Reeves, Jr., USN, Chief of Naval Air Training.

Former Aviation Machinist's Mate Second Class Samuel B. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Anderson, Whitehall, Mont., was the first candidate to qualify under recently announced requirements set forth in AlNav 70 providing that enlisted high school graduates who pass usual physical examinations and have satisfactory grades in pertinent aviation courses in lieu of two years' college formerly required will be accepted for Naval Aviation Cadet Training.

Gift From Mokil Islanders

An outrigger canoe, carved from a solid log of breadfruit wood by natives of Mokil Island in the Carolines, was launched and sailed this week on the Potomac River. It is a gift from Mokil Islanders to Capt. Walter Karig, USNR, special assistant to the Chief of Naval Operations for Public Relations, who visited the islands last year.

The canoe will be presented to the Naval Historical Foundation and accepted by Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, USN. Until museum space is available, the outrigger will be kept at the Naval Ordnance Plant, Alexandria, Va.

Martin MARS Writes the Future of Seaplanes in Today's Navy Records*

With a series of record-breaking flights, the Navy's new Martin JRM-2 Caroline Mars has refocused attention on the importance of seaplanes in modern military supply planning. And further emphasized the reputation of Martin flying boats for high performance, endurance and reliability! First the Caroline Mars cracked the non-stop seaplane record with a 4748-mile-flight from Honolulu to Chicago. A few days later, this mighty ship carried the highest airborne tonnage in history, flying 68,283 lbs. from Patuxent, Md., to Cleveland. Now, this latest Martin Mars is in service in the Pacific, regularly carrying 39,000 to 40,000 lbs. over the 2,400 miles from Alameda, Cal., to Honolulu!

Said Vice Admiral John D. Price, Deputy Chief of Naval Operations: "Squadron VR-2 with its 145,000-lb. JRM-1 flying boats has provided outstanding evidence of the significant role which large flying boats can play in meeting the logistic needs of national defense. Requiring no prepared forward bases . . . the flying boats can provide air lift in large tonnage volume with efficiency and economy of operation and complete mobility as to bases. Carrying even larger loads than its sister ships, the Caroline Mars will provide an important boost to the total air lift available in the Pacific."

It's another Martin "first" . . . building air power to save the peace, air transport to serve it!

Air Commanders to Meet

General George C. Kenney, Commanding General, announced yesterday that a meeting of Air Force commanders will begin Monday at the Air University, Maxwell AFB, Ala. The meeting was scheduled originally for October.

The sessions are called for the discussion of mutual problems among the commanders for review of such topics as officer education and personnel training. A similar meeting was held at Air Force Headquarters in Washington last January.

Secretary of the Air Force W. Stuart Symington is scheduled to attend some of the meetings. Also slated to attend are General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Chief of Staff, and General Muir S. Fairchild, Vice Chief of Staff and former commanding general of the Air University.

Others expected to attend, in addition to General Kenney, are: General J. T. McNarney, CG, Air Materiel Command; Lt. Gen. C. E. LeMay, CG, Strategic Air Command; Maj. Gen. R. M. Lee, CG, Tactical Air Command; Maj. Gen. R. W. Harper, CG, Air Proving Ground Command; Maj. Gen. L. S. Kuter, CG, Military Air Transport Service; Maj. Gen. J. H. Atkinson, CG, Alaskan Air Command; Maj. Gen. W. H. Hale, CG, Caribbean Air Command; Lt. Gen. G. E. Stratemeyer, CG, Air Defense Command; Lt. Gen. E. C. Whitehead, CG, Far East Air Forces; Brig. Gen. R. F. Travis, CG, Pacific Air Command; and Col. W. R. Wolfenbarger, Director of Plans, Headquarters, United States Air Forces in Europe.

Johnson AFB Gets New Strip

Dedication of a new, American-built aircraft parking-strip at Johnson Air Force Base, Japan, took place last month, climaxing eight months' hard work. Col. Ray W. Clifton, Commanding General, 35th Fighter Wing, JAFB, formally accepted the completed project from Lt. Col. D. M. McClain, Commanding Officer, 43rd Engineer Construction Battalion, Tokorozawa, Japan.

This ambitious undertaking was started 15 March under the immediate direction of 1st Lt. W. A. Gorman and ten enlisted men of the 43rd Engineers working with the Kajima Construction Co., Ltd., the Japanese contractors. In spite of inclement weather, over a million square feet of parking space were laid during an actual working period of slightly over four working months.

Augment "Vittles" Planes

The Air Force has ordered 20 C-54 transport planes to Germany to augment more than 230 U.S. planes now assigned to fly supplies along the air corridors into Berlin.

On 21 Oct. President Truman authorized General Lucius D. Clay, Commanding General of United States Forces in Europe, to request up to 66 additional C-54s to supplement the Air Force planes then assigned to fly the air corridors.

The 20 C-54s ordered to Germany will bring to 44 the number of additional planes transferred to the airlift since President Truman's authorization.

U. S. AIR FORCEHousing Warning to Airmen

General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff, has warned personnel of acute housing shortages and has made three recommendations to help alleviate the critical lack of adequate quarters, especially for dependents. In AF Letter No. 34-48, General Vandenberg said it is recommended that:

"Personnel, when ordered to a new station, precede their families to ascertain whether quarters and living conditions will be compatible with the general health and welfare of their dependents, particularly in families where there are children. Emphasis is placed on those Air Force bases located in metropolitan areas and areas where personnel of the other Armed Forces are stationed."

"Commanders give careful consideration to all aspects concerning the transfer of personnel and include the number of dependents in so far as practicable and consistent with the needs of the Air Force. Attention is invited to paragraph 3, AFR 35-59, 22 Apr. 1947."

"Prior to departure, all personnel when ordered on a permanent change of station in the zone of interior be encouraged to write to the commanding officer of their new station for advance information or for any assistance concerning housing. Commercial telegrams or other communications containing requests or inquiries, should be forwarded in sufficient time to insure receipt of reply by collect telegram or through normal mail channels prior to the date of departure."

Berlin Traffic Controllers

Approximately 40 reserve officers who served with the Air Force during World War II have been recalled to extended active duty as air traffic controllers with the Berlin airlift.

Half of the 40 recalled officers will leave for Germany immediately. The remainder will be given a 60-day training course at seven air route traffic control centers in the United States operated by Civil Aeronautics Administration's Traffic Control Division and then will be assigned to Operation Vittles.

Most of the 40 Reserve officers recalled by the USAF for the traffic control duty are lieutenants and captains who served as air traffic controllers during World War II and the training, in most cases, will be merely a refresher course for them. The majority of the recalled officers are fliers.

The CAA will train the officers at their control centers in St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Minneapolis, Memphis, San Antonio, Jacksonville, and Great Falls, Montana. Upon completion of 60 days' training they will be assigned to the 1807th Airway and Air Communications Service Wing at Wiesbaden, Germany.

Honor ROTC Air Cadet

At an impressive ceremony held 24 Nov. in the office of Maj. G. G. Coyle, USAF, Asst. PMS&T for Air at New York University, the annual award of the Air Force Association medal was presented to Cadet Maj. Harley Silver of 1533 Townsend Avenue, New York 53, N. Y. The medal was presented by Mr. Joseph V. Falabella, Commander of the Bronx Squadron of the AF Association. Representing First Air Force Headquarters was Lt. Col. Hugh Bledsoe, USAF.

Col. E. A. Rudelius, Professor of Military Science and Tactics at New York University, who is long experienced in ROTC affairs, stated that "Mr. Silver is an outstanding Cadet in all phases of military and college training."

cause from the grade of lieutenant colonel as a result of the grade readjustment program;

(c) All non-Regular Air Force officers in the temporary grade of major who will be 32 years old before 8 December 1948, or who will complete seven or more years of active Federal commissioned service prior to 8 December, and

(d) All non-Regular Air Force officers who were reduced from the temporary grade of lieutenant colonel without cause under the grade readjustment program.

Captain:

(a) All Regular Air Force officers serving in the grade of first lieutenant and having four and a half years of service for promotion purposes by 1 July 1948; and

(b) All non-Regular first lieutenants with four and a half years of active Federal commissioned service prior to 1 July 1948, or who were 29½ years of age prior to 1 July 1948.

Service with the Civilian Conservation Corps or active duty periods of 90 days or less will not be considered.

With regard to promotion of officers to general rank, the Air Force said an eligibility list has been established after consideration of nearly 700 colonels and brigadier generals. Promotions will be made as vacancies occur. The Air Force now has the full quota of 195 general officers authorized by current budgetary limitations.

Members of the promotion board which screened records of the brigadier generals and colonels for one grade promotions were: Lt. Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman; Lt. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead, Lt. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Maj. Gen. William E. Kepner, Maj. Gen. Thomas D. White, Maj. Gen. Harold M. McClelland and Maj. Gen. Orval R. Cook.

Air Rescue Units Doubled

In order to double its present strength of 12 pararescue teams—six in the United States and six overseas—the Air Force has established eligibility rules which now permit personnel with necessary qualifications to request pararescue and survival training.

Heretofore, all personnel trained for these duties came from within the Air Rescue Service.

The training program, expected to produce approximately 12 pararescue teams each year, will consist of a six-week course of parachutist training at Ft. Benning, Ga., and a six-week course in survival and rescue technique with the 5th Rescue Squadron at MacDill AFB, Tampa, Fla.

A pararescue team consists of one officer and four enlisted men trained to parachute as a team into varied terrain and, under varied climatic conditions, to give emergency medical care to survivors of aircraft crashes in otherwise inaccessible areas and to prepare the survivors for evacuation. A pararescue team is composed of one medical officer, two medical corpsmen, and two enlisted men trained for primary duty as survival specialists.

The USAF now has 12 pararescue teams—six in the United States and six overseas.

The following requirements have been established by Air Force Letter 58-9 for entrance to the pararescue training course:

1. Assigned to the zone of the interior at time of application.
2. A Medical Department officer of company grade, or
3. An enlisted man not above the grade of staff sergeant, and, if in the Medical Department, hold SSN 809 or 881.
4. Physically qualified for general duty.
5. Between 23 and 36 years of age.
6. Weight not more than 190 pounds.
7. Not less than 5 feet, 6 inches tall.
8. Eligible for overseas duty.
9. Willing to participate in parachute jumping as an essential part of his duties.
10. At least 15 months to serve in current enlistment or indicate willingness to extend enlistment period or to reenlist before transfer to Air Rescue Service.

Applicants should have a background, military or civilian, as woodsman, trapper, hunter, farmer, or other outdoor occupations involving physical endurance, adaptability, and resourcefulness.

French Air Officials Visit

Jean Moreau, the French Secretary of State for Air, accompanied by Jean Mar-

An advance party of the French delegation, including Maj. Gen. Jean Guyot, commanding general of the French Air Materiel Command; Brig. Gen. Michel Bouvard, director of the military cabinet, and three technical advisers to the Air Ministry, arrived one day earlier.

Mr. Moreau and party were met by members of the staff of Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, commanding general of Continental Air Command. A group of officers from USAF headquarters flew to Mitchel AFB to accompany the delegation to Washington, where they met W. Stuart Symington, Secretary of the Air

Air Force "810" Board

Air Force officials said this week that the board convened to review records of all officers in accordance with Public Law 810, which requires the elimination of sub-standard officer personnel, is expected to complete its deliberations next month.

The board, the membership of which has not yet been revealed by the Air Force, was not in session this week, but has not completed its study.

A dream came true in 1903

45 years ago... on a barren, wind-swept beach at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, two young men were experimenting with an awkward-looking "flying machine." Their dream was to fly. Finally a telegram went out . . . Made two flights today against 40 mile wind. Inform press. Home for Christmas. Love. Orville. Their dream had come true. The Air Age was launched.

Today, aviation knows no limits. In doing honor to the Wright brothers on the 45th Anniversary of their Kitty Hawk flight, Curtiss-Wright also honors the ingenuity and productivity of American men and women of aviation . . . the far-seeing ones, the followers of Orville and Wilbur Wright and Glenn H. SATURDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1948

"We know now that wisdom and vision and military strength that commands respect can help to preserve the peace, just as timidity, blindness and weakness can invite the very conflict we seek to avoid."—JOHN L. SULLIVAN, SECRETARY OF THE NAVY.

GENERAL Omar N. Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, called to Washington this week his principal field commanders in continental United States for a three-day conference, officially described as "routine." Attending the meetings were the Chief of the Field Forces, the six Army commanders, the head of the Military District of Washington, and some of their principal advisers, as well as the Chief of Staff and his appropriate assistants. While any assembly of such a constellation of top Army leaders can scarcely be considered routine, it is a continuation of the practice begun last Spring soon after General Bradley became Chief of Staff. The topics discussed included the recent reorganization of the Department of the Army, the budgetary limitation on Army expansion, the legislative program, developments in training techniques, prospective field maneuvers, and defense requirements. Advantage was taken of the opportunity for a full discussion by Army commanders of problems of mutual interest. Such meetings are of tremendous benefit to the participants and to the Army. The current trend is to decentralize much of the work of the Department of the Army to the field commands. To insure uniformity it is essential that each leader be kept fully informed of all policies affecting his command and the Army as a whole. This can be best accomplished through meetings such as the one held this week and through field visits by the Chief of Staff and his principal assistants. One object of the recent reorganization of the Department of the Army was to relieve the Chief of Staff of much detailed work in order that he and the Vice Chief of Staff might be free to travel more to acquaint themselves with local problems of Army commanders. As a corollary to this week's conference of Army leaders it has been suggested that the heads of Staff sections in each Army area meet in Washington at least once a year with heads of the appropriate staff divisions.

THE people of the United States have every reason to be grateful for the continuing, ever-closer cooperation between the aviation industry and the Air Force, and also for the progressive elimination of flying hazards through the work of the Government and the civilian air lines. Included among the important missions of the Air Force in our National Defense are long-range strategic bombing, tactical air support of ground troops, air defense of our homeland and overseas bases, and operation of air supply and transport. For these duties a considerable variety of highly specialized airplanes is necessary. Civilian aircraft designers and manufacturers are contributing materially to the security of the country by devoting their talents and energies to the development of new and better types of planes more suited to our military requirements. We are continually seeking greater speeds, longer ranges, improved maneuverability, and increased carrying capacities. With the use of conventional fuel the utility of our planes at long ranges is circumscribed by the necessity of devoting considerable space and weight to gas tanks. Improved fuel, lessening of weight without reducing strength, refueling in flight and other techniques are subjects of continuing research in industry as well as in the Air Force. In a recent address before the Institute of Aeronautic Sciences General Muir S. Fairchild acknowledged the debt we owe to industry in the development of better combat aircraft. He bespoke greater cooperation for the future, through a clearer definition of our strategic position, a reduction of the rigidity of requirements, and a simplification of our defense problems. Similarly the Air Force is looking to the coordination of scientific developments of the Federal Government and civilian air lines for the material reduction of flying hazards in adverse weather. Within the next few years it is planned to expend some 500 million dollars to make possible all-weather flying throughout the United States. This will be accomplished by the use of improved communications, new lighting systems for all large airports, reliable landing control devices, distance measuring equipment, and surveillance radar. The completion of this ambitious program will increase materially the safety and reliability of civilian air travel, and will be of tremendous importance to military aviation in an emergency.

FLEET Admiral William D. Leahy, Chief of Staff to the President, plans to retire soon after more than 55 years of devoted public service—a decision to which President Truman has reluctantly acceded. At 73 Admiral Leahy is vigorous and alert, as always direct and forthright. In retirement he will still be available for consultation and advice, and in an emergency will welcome further active duty in any capacity. Few officials have had such a varied and useful career as that of the President's distinguished Chief of Staff. Born in Iowa in 1875 he entered the Naval Academy in 1898 and since that time has served with great distinction in the Navy, in the diplomatic corps, and as confidential adviser to two Presidents. In the War with Spain in 1898 as a junior officer he was aboard the Oregon when that famous old battleship went around Cape Horn to reinforce our fleet off Santiago. In World War I he was executive officer of the Nevada and later in command of a Naval transport. Subsequently he became Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance. In 1935 he was made Chief of Naval Operations. During his term he established many of the policies so important to the success of Naval operations in World War II. He retired in 1939 and was appointed Governor of Puerto Rico. The following year after the Germans had defeated France Admiral Leahy was named Ambassador to try to strengthen the resistance of the Pétain government to German domination. In 1942 he returned to the United States and became Chief of Staff to the President, a post created by Mr. Roosevelt to utilize the experience, talents and judgment of Admiral Leahy. In this capacity he presided over the Joint Chiefs of Staff, represented the President in delicate negotiations with Allied military leaders, advised the President on the conduct of the war, and was in many ways an Assistant President. His place in history as a great American war leader is secure.

E.L.V.—Under the provisions of PL 381, 80th Congress, your commissioned service prior to 7 Dec. 1941 may not be counted for promotion purposes. To have been promoted to captain automatically on 1 July 1948, it would have been necessary for you to have completed 7 years' service for promotion purposes before that date. Your seven years' service for promotion purposes will not be completed until 7 Dec. 1948.

E.D.I.—The Department of the Air Force has advised us that identification cards are planned for soldiers who have been advanced on the retired list to commissioned officer grades. It will not be necessary to apply for these cards.

W. P. W.—Dependents of Army personnel are not authorized shipment to Korea at the present time.

One Year Ago

Rear Adm. Lewis B. Combs, CEC, USN, retired 1 Dec., after completing 30 years of active duty, became head of the Civil Engineering Department at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute on 1 Jan. 1948.

10 Years Ago

The Commandant of Marines reports that in the rifle record practice, 83% of 15,100 officers and men qualified as marksmen or better, and 90% of the 5,178 officers and men who fired the pistol record practice, won like qualification.

25 Years Ago

The American foot soldier's pack has always been considerably heavier than those carried by the infantry of foreign countries, and if the details now being worked out are successful a number of pounds will be lopped off the Doughboy's pack which now averages 73-80 pounds. It will be reduced to 40-50 pounds.

50 Years Ago

The retired officers of the Army will make a determined effort with Congress to have a clause put in the Army bill authorizing the Secretary to call them into service in times of necessity. Many of them were eager for duty during the war, and look with envy upon their brethren of the Navy who were taken into employment that was all the more congenial because it was connected with the defense of their country during a period of active hostilities.

80 Years Ago

The results of General Sheridan's winter campaign against the Indians are already manifesting themselves. General Custer has had a smart little fight with Black Kettle's band, who committed the first depredations on the Saline and Solomon rivers in Kansas. Black Kettle and 102 of his warriors were killed, his family, and that of Little Raven, captured together with some fifty other women and children and all their stock, ammunition, arms, lodges, and robes. "The highest credit is due to General Custer and his command. They started in a furious snow-storm and traveled all the while in snow about twelve inches deep."

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—The absurd action of the German Communists in pretending to set up a rump municipal government in the Soviet sector of Berlin has made any possibility of the immediate settlement of current difficulties appear remote. With municipal elections scheduled for 5 December the Communists decided to try to take over the functions of the local government rather than participate in the balloting, in which they faced certain defeat.

In their move to seize the government some 2,500 carefully selected representatives of the Communist party and other Communist-front organizations met in a musical comedy theater in the Soviet sector and by a show of hands, or rather fists, quickly ratified a Red slate of candidates, previously cleared by the Soviet authorities, and called this an election. Subsequently the results were proclaimed at an open-air mass meeting on Unter den Linden in the Soviet sector. The participants were workers who had been given a holiday for the occasion, but who displayed little enthusiasm.

The so-called new government declared it was the legally constituted regime, proclaimed the forthcoming regular election null and void, and announced the nationalization of all industries in Berlin. Already the Reds have taken over the city hall which is in the Russian district and have barred the regularly chosen city officers from entering their offices.

In the meantime, in Paris, Juan Bramuglia, Argentine delegate to the United Nations, continued his efforts to settle the Berlin dispute through the Security Council. At his suggestion Russia and the three western powers consented to the establishment of a commission of financial experts representing the so-called neutral members of the Council to study the Berlin currency problem. In accepting the proposal the western powers asked that consideration be given to current events in Berlin, and repeated their previously expressed reservation that in view of developments they should be free to take independent action to maintain their position in that city.

Progress of the United Nations toward a settlement of the war in Palestine was much more satisfactory than in the case of Germany. Great Britain has withdrawn support of the Bernadotte proposal on Palestine boundaries, and while not wholly satisfied with the original partition plan will no longer object to allotting the Negev Desert to Israel. Acting independently of the United Nations local commanders of Jewish and Arab forces in Jerusalem have agreed to cease hostilities in the Holy City. It seems probable that worshipers may observe the Christmas season in Bethlehem and Jerusalem undisturbed by gunfire. Israel has applied for membership in the United Nations and will probably be accepted. British delegates have indicated that they will refrain from the use of a veto to block admission.

The arrival in Washington of Madame Chiang Kai-shek, charming first lady of China, to solicit aid for her hard-pressed country coincided with serious reverses for the Nationalist armies of her husband. Reinforced Red forces have outflanked Suchow and surrounded some 140,000 government troops north of Nanking. Another force of 85,000 is between the Reds and Nanking, while 250,000 more are isolated in the Suchow area. The fast-moving Communists have apparently successfully split the defenders and are now in a position to utilize local numerical superiority to try to defeat the Nationalists in detail.

If the Communists are to be prevented from taking Nanking and all of the lower Yangtze valley it will probably be necessary for the nearly half million Nationalists to effect a juncture. This required the abandonment of Suchow, with the loss of tremendous quantities of military stores through destruction or capture by the Reds. Unless there is an unforeseen change in the situation observers see little hope of saving Nanking, Shanghai and other North China cities. In spite of denials rumors persist that Chiang plans to move his capital from Nanking to Canton or Chungking.

One reason for the recent succession of Nationalist defeats is the stubborn insistence of Chiang's generals on positional warfare. This has occasioned heavy losses in men and materiel. The highly mobile Red forces have been permitted to range freely through the countryside of Manchuria and North China, encountering little opposition, save in the heavily garrisoned cities. These were often isolated and by-passed, the garrisons cut off from communications and ultimately falling as rich prizes to the aggressors.

Most American administrative and Congressional leaders are somewhat cold to the appeals for large-scale military and civilian aid for China. They feel that there is no guarantee of any improvement in the administrative or military qualities of the current Chinese government that have cost our country so much in the past. Economic Administrator Paul Hoffman plans a careful investigation of the Chinese situation and his report may determine the extent of our future assistance. In the meantime Madame Chiang Kai-shek is receiving every courtesy from our country, but she is not likely to be assured of further expenditure of vast sums to rescue her country from the Red menace. In the meantime, President Truman has announced that he has no intention of assigning General Douglas MacArthur as military adviser to Chiang.

Two of the Japanese leaders recently convicted of war crimes by an international tribunal have appealed to the United States Supreme Court to set aside their death sentences. Pending action on the appeal General Douglas MacArthur has postponed the execution of these two and five other doomed leaders. In view of precedents it seems unlikely that the Supreme Court will intervene.

The amazing octogenarian Greek premier, Themistokles Sophoulis, appears to be recovering from two severe heart attacks suffered last week. Attending physicians, who had previously indicated his death was a matter of hours, now give him an excellent chance to live. His recovery would rescue Greece from another threatened cabinet crisis.

In local elections in two former Austrian provinces in northern Italy the Communists suffered a stinging defeat. The supporters of Italian Premier de Gasperi and other anti-Communist groups made practically a clean sweep. However, there is some dissension among pro-government parties on the question of present and future Italian neutrality. Some conservative elements oppose any suggestion that Italy join France and other western European countries in a defensive alliance.

Secretary of State George C. Marshall, who recently returned from the meetings of the United Nations in Paris, is in Walter Reed hospital for a periodic physical checkup. He has been requested by the President to continue in his post as Secretary of State for an indefinite period and has consented to do so.

Restore General Pershing Post No. 1—Commander J. Burton Morris of George Washington Post No. 1, Department of the District of Columbia, American Legion, has appointed a special committee to consider renaming the American Legion's first post as the "General Pershing Post No. 1."

On 7 March, 1919, when the pioneer post was founded it was named in honor of General Pershing. However in May of that year, it was determined that "no post shall be named after any living person" and the unit became known then as the George Washington Post No. 1. Now, however, a move is under way to reinstitute the original designation.

Alien Dependents and Sponsors—All European Command alien dependents and sponsors are being given transportation priority on army vessels leaving for the United States, in order that the alien dependents will be in the U. S. before midnight on 27 Dec., the expiration date of the Alien Spouse Act. All major commands in the EC have been instructed to move, with one exception, all such dependents and their sponsors before shipping any other cabin class passengers; the exception is military personnel whose term of service expiration dates would be effected.

At present there are 2,752 alien dependents in the Command who are to be sent to the United States before 27 Dec. and most of them will be accompanied by their sponsors. In that total are 2,118 wives and grown children, 218 children younger than 7 years and 416 infants.

Signal Corps—The Signal Corps announces a new position under title "Director, of Research," covering research activities in their three laboratories located in the Ft. Monmouth, N. J. area. Dr. Harold A. Zahl, physicist, has been named to fill this position by Brig. Gen. F. H. Lanahan, acting for the Chief Signal Officer, Maj. Gen. Spencer B. Akin. Dr. Zahl's responsibilities will cover research conducted within the Signal Corps' own laboratories and an extended external program carried on by contract in universities and in industry.

Also participating in the presentation ceremony were Col. P. L. Neal, Commanding Officer of the Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories; Professor I. I. Rabi, Professor of Physics, Columbia University; Dr. D. H. Loughridge, Senior Scientific Adviser to Secretary of the Department of the Army; Dr. David Delo, Chief, Scientific Manpower Section, General Staff, U. S. Army; and Mr. J. E. Rossell, Regional Director, Second U. S. Civil Service Region.

Military Police—Three assignments of military police officers are announced by Second Army Headquarters. Lt. Col. Samuel A. Smith assumes the duties of Deputy Provost Marshal, Second Army, in place of Lt. Col. William Hilke, who will be Provost Marshal of the 17th Airborne Division at Camp Pickett, Va. Command of the 772d Military Police Battalion, formerly Lt. Col. Smith's, has been assigned to Lt. Col. John B. Manley, Jr., who for the past two years has been a Regular Army Instructor with the District of Columbia National Guard.

Medical Service Corps—Appointment of Maj. Curtis H. Smith, MSC, to the position of Adjutant of Madigan General Hospital, was announced last week by Col. Maxwell G. Keeler, Commanding Officer. Major Smith replaces Capt. Edward J. Hanna, who left recently for service in Germany. Major Smith has spent most of his eighteen years of Army Service in Medical Corps administrative work. He reports to Madigan after service at Rodriguez General Hospital, San Juan, Puerto Rico, where he served as Executive Officer. His wife, Mary C. Smith, and their children, Donald, 9, and Kathryn, 5, are living with the major in quarters on Post.

Social Security for Servicemen—There was renewed talk in Washington this week concerning plans to include Army, Navy and Air Force personnel in the social security system. Officials of the Federal Security Agency reportedly have submitted this proposal to the President, explaining that men who do not make a 20- or 30-year career out of the Service are losing out on social security benefits during their military service.

This problem was discussed during World War II but remedial action was not taken. Now as the Army, Navy and Air Force expand, the FSA is anxious to insure the social security status of persons entering the Service for short periods of time. Officials emphasize that the inclusion of military personnel in the social security structure would not jeopardize their rights under the present military retirement systems.

Transportation Corps—Movement of the Office, Chief of Transportation from the Pentagon to Building T-7 at Gravelly Point, Va., started Friday, 3 Dec., and will continue through Sunday, 12 Dec. Following is the tentative schedule for movement of the various OCT Divisions and Offices. The Executive Office, OCT, will close its work in the Pentagon at 1930 hours Thursday, 9 Dec., and will open at that time in Room 1844, Building T-7, (Extensions 2808 and 76443). Current phone extension numbers of the OCT Divisions will not be changed.

Army Off-Duty Education—The interest of Army officer and enlisted personnel in off-duty educational pursuits is "skyrocketing." So said Brig. Gen. C. T. Lanham, USA, Special Assistant to General Omar N. Bradley, USA, Army Chief of Staff. More than 250,000 men are now engaged in some form of non-military education on their own time, General Lanham related.

He told the National Council for the Social Studies that more than 5,000 men a month are qualifying for high school diplomas or equivalent certificates. "Dollar for dollar," General Lanham said, "our educational program provides our country with one of the most profitable investments it can make in the Armed Forces. It provides us with an alert soldier; it pays rich dividends in terms of prestige for the man in uniform; it is one of the primary inducements in attracting high quality volunteers; and, finally, it represents a permanent social gain to the Republic."

Bureau of Medicine and Surgery—Two naval medical officers, Capt. Oran W. Chenault and Comdr. Robert H. Ward, USN, were recently elected to Fellowships in the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology. They both are on duty at the Naval Hospital, San Diego.

The American Board of Pathology recently announced that Comdr. Vernon E. Martens, MC, USN, has successfully passed the necessary requirements and examinations and has been admitted as a diplomat to that board. The examining board commended Commander Martens for his excellent marks in bacteriology and for a perfect score in chemistry.

Air Force Selection—A recheck by the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL revealed this week that Air Force sources were in error when they reported recently the convening of a board to review records of officers inadvertently overlooked for permanent promotion. It is now explained that no such board has been organized.

Christmas Card Costs—The Army has reminded its personnel that the Comptroller General maintains that the cost of Christmas greeting cards is considered a personal rather than an official expense and therefore is not chargeable to public funds.

Corps of Military Police—With 5,613 students, the Corps of Military Police claims to lead all technical and administrative services in total enrollment, percentage of ORC officers enrolled and percentage of completion of branch material subcourses of the Army Extension Courses. Forty-five subcourses are available including the three new subjects of Orientation on Military Government, Military Boards and Investigations and Traffic Control.

Regular courses at the Military Police School are now in progress at Camp Gordon, Georgia, after transfer of the school from Carlisle Barracks, Pa., without interference with schedules. The transfer was made by rail on 11 Nov. following the graduation of four classes on 10 Nov. Other classes resumed their studies at Camp Gordon on 12 Nov. and six new classes began at Camp Gordon during the period from 1 to 15 Nov.

Warrants in ORC—Until appropriate legislation provides warrant officers in the Organized Reserve Corps, Army area commanders will be permitted to fill all warrant officer spaces provided in the ORC Troop Bases with qualified enlisted personnel of the ORC in the following priorities:

1) ORC enlisted personnel in grade 1 whose separation grade was that of warrant officer; 2) remainder of grade 1 enlisted personnel of the ORC; 3) grade 2 enlisted personnel; and 4) grade 3 enlisted personnel. Where accountability or responsibility of property is involved, an officer of the lowest rank available will be utilized.

Army Forced Elimination Board—Under chairmanship of Maj. Gen. Russel B. Reynolds, Chief of Special Services, a board has been convened at the Pentagon to review the records of all Regular officers to determine if there are any sub-standard officers who should be required to show cause for their retention in the Service.

This is in conformity with provisions of Public Law 810 which requires the Army to make such a survey. In addition to General Reynolds, other members are Brigadier Generals Willard W. Irvine, John K. Rieke, John F. Conklin and Kester B. Hastings.

No date is yet available as to when the board will complete its deliberations.

Army Chaplain Corps—The Office of the Chief of Chaplains reports that there are 1,177 chaplains of all faiths on duty with the Army and Air Forces. The top figure during the war was 8,171. A total of 78 were killed in action; 4 died in a Japanese prison camp; 264 were wounded in action. Decorations received—2,369, among them 18 DSC's and 157 Silver Stars.

Judge Advocate General's Department—Maj. Donald Meanes, Jr., JAGD, Res., and Capt. William W. Kramer, JAGD, Res., have begun a 90 day tour of duty in the JAGO under the Judge Advocate General's officer procurement program with a view toward direct commissions in the Regular Army. Lt. Col. William G. Easton, JAGD, who recently was graduated from the University of Minnesota Law School with a degree of LLB, has begun a tour of duty in the JAGO. 1st Lt. Robert M. Lathrop, JAGD, Res., of New Orleans, La., has been recalled to active duty and assigned to JAGO.

May Increase National Guard—Army sources indicated to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL this week that consideration is being given to the possibility of seeking supplemental funds early in the 81st Congress to expand the National Guard beyond its present limitation of 341,000 officers and enlisted men, 300,000 for Army units and 41,000 for the Air National Guard.

Maj. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer, Chief, National Guard Bureau, significantly has reported in recent speeches—one at the annual conference of the National Guard Association—that such action would be highly desirable.

In view of President Truman's mid-October order concerning acceleration of the civilian components program, it is speculated that the Bureau of the Budget might receive favorably an Army request for additional Guard expenditures during the current fiscal year.

One possible step believed under consideration is the increase of drill periods for Guardsmen, also discussed in recent addresses by General Cramer.

There were reports that the problem of increasing the Guard beyond its present strength was discussed this week at a meeting of National Guard Association officials in Washington.

They reviewed progress reports of the Guard as related to Army units and noted that the Guard is running ahead of previously established objectives. That is to say there are more men in Army units of the Guard at the present time than was planned when budget limitations were set by the 80th Congress.

Reserve and Guard Chiefs Confer—Speculation that the National Guard and Organized Reserve Corps would act in closer accord during the forthcoming legislative sessions on Capitol Hill heightened this week as it was revealed that Maj. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh, National Guard Association president, and Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, Association legislation director, conferred at a luncheon meeting with Col. Clarence E. Barnes, President, and Brig. Gen. E. A. Evans, Executive Director, of the Reserve Officers Association.

Presumably, a major topic of conversation at the meeting related to the controversial Gray Board Report, which recommended Federalization of the Guard, and to recent sessions of the General Staff Committee on National Guard and Reserve Affairs. Unofficially, it is reported that neither the National Guard nor ORC representatives were completely happy over results of these sessions.

Promotion Laws to Stand—There is every indication that the Army and the Air Force will permit the new selection laws to operate at least another year without asking Congress to make any modifications or changes in the statute. This is being done, it is understood, to give the selection system, which is new to these services, a more extended try before attempting to reshape it. On the other hand, the Navy and Marine Corps, which have had long experience with selection, may seek some perfecting amendments and modifications to existing law. These are now under study in the Bureau of Personnel.

Whether the members of the Armed Services Committees of Congress will undertake any changes on their own initiative has not yet been indicated. It is known, however, that rumblings of dissatisfaction within the Air Force have reached a number of members of Congress and they may at least direct inquiries to the Department.

Army Dental Corps—Maj. Gen. Thomas L. Smith, Chief of the Army Dental Corps, has announced that under the provisions of Department of the Army Circular 339, dated 28 Oct., 139 applicants have been initially selected to participate in the Army Senior Dental Student Program. All have been notified to report for a complete final type physical examination, which will be accomplished in an Army medical installation near the dental school in which they are enrolled. Those found to be physically qualified will be tendered commissions as second lieutenants in the Medical Service Corps Reserve, and ordered to active duty at their dental school. Senior students so commissioned will be permitted to continue their studies, as officers with full pay and allowances, until graduation or until completion of the academic year in which enrolled.

Master Menu Board—Under chairmanship of Lt. Col. C. A. Rogers, Chief, Food Service Division, Office Quartermaster General, a joint Army and Air Force Master Menu Board has been created to review the master menu as prepared by the Quartermaster General and to make recommendations to insure nutritious and palatable meals for Army and Air Force personnel in the Z. I. Other members are: Majors, Charles A. LaFord, W. F. Dildine, John A. McDonald, and Milton J. Ingeman, OQMG; Capt. Carl J. Koehn, Office of the Surgeon General; Capts. Robert Hensly, Leonard Beldowicz and John Phelps of the Air Force; and Mrs. Vivian Parks, Mrs. Barbara Creamer, Mr. W. W. McNamara, Mr. D. P. Danyew and Mr. George A. Baxter, Army experts on menu planning and food supplies.

Reserve Signal Unit Commanded—Maj. Gen. Harry J. Collins, USA, Commanding General, 2d Infantry Division and Post Commander, Ft. Lewis, Wash., has commanded the 316th Signal Heavy Construction Battalion, ORC, under command of Lt. Col. Ezra T. Pope, Jr., SigC-Res., for outstanding service accomplished during its 12 to 26 Sept. summer training period. General Colling said that "during this period the officers and men of your battalion, with little or no individual training and no team training in open wire construction erected a pole line of approximately four and one half miles in length in the period of five days . . . It is felt that the normal time for constructing such a pole line by inexperienced troops is at least twice the time it was necessary for your unit to complete this work."

The 316th has as its executive officer, Maj. Fred W. Kerr, SigC-Res., while Maj. Gustave E. Vitt, SigC, USA, is unit instructor.

Finance Department—Lt. Col. Dean J. Almy, for the past several years Chief of the Special Financial Services Division in the Office of the Chief of Finance, was separated from the service last week and returned to his position with the Securities and Exchange Commission. Colonel Almy served in the Office of the Chief of Finance since February 1942 and was a member of the original team of officers to institute the war bond promotion program in the Army and Air Force. Under his supervision, a total of more than two billion dollars in bonds was sold to military and civilian personnel of the Army and Air Force. In December 1945, he was awarded the Legion of Merit. Colonel Almy and his family will make their home at 6303 Oakridge Avenue, Chevy Chase, Md.

Navy Dental Corps—The Naval Dental Corps will be well represented at the Greater New York Dental Meeting which will be held 6-10 Dec. at the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York City. The new Naval Dental Corps Training Exhibit will be located on the mezzanine floor. Three dental teaching motion picture films recently made by the Naval Dental School will be shown. Comdr. George W. Ferguson of the Naval Dental School will present a registered clinic on amalgam. Comdr. William H. Lieser and Comdr. Alfred L. Raphael of the New York Naval Clinic will present table clinics on prosthodontia and on amalgam restorations respectively. Comdr. James L. Bradley and Lt. Comdr. Anthony K. Kaires of the St. Albans Naval Hospitals will present table clinics on maxillofacial injuries.

Army Field Forces—Col. J. A. Smith, Jr., Plans and Policy Division of Logistics Section, visited Headquarters USARFANT, San Juan, P. R., 26-30 Nov., to discuss matters of logistical support during Vieques Amphibious Exercises with members of the staff of the Commanding General, U. S. Forces Antilles.

Col. Onslow S. Rolfe and Lt. Col. H. L. Olson, Developments Section, will visit AFF Board No. 3, Fort Benning, Ga., 6-10 Dec., to attend a conference on weapons. Col. Ernest T. Owen, Developments Section, attended a conference on the British Joint Services Mission in Washington, D. C., 30 Nov. Col. D. F. Healy, Jr., Quartermaster, AFT, and Lt. Col. K. A. Latta, Quartermaster Section, visited the Quartermaster School, Camp Lee, Va., 29 Nov., in connection with QM training and ORC Quartermaster training schedules.

Airways & Air Communications Service—When the new airfield at Tegel Air Field, French Zone, Berlin, begins to shoulder part of the "Vittles" traffic, many of the technicians will be Americans. Approximately 50 AAC specialists have been assigned to Tegel to handle the radio control tower, approach control, teletype to Tempelhof Air Field, radio circuit to Tempelhof, weather circuits and Ground Controlled Approach (radar "blind-landing").

Quartermaster Corps—Col. Samuel H. Baker retired on 30 Nov. He was detailed to the Transportation Corps in 1944 and served as assistant transportation officer at Boston Army Base, Boston, Mass.

Col. Norman Minus will be assigned to The Quartermaster Center, Camp Lee, Va., on return from his present tour of foreign duty in January, 1949.

mont for visit before driving East via Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., and Cleveland, Ohio.

The wedding was in March Field A. F. Base Chapel with small group of family and friends. Reception at Officers' Club afterwards. The bride wore traditional white satin, draped bustle and train, with an old family veil (long) illusion and "pointe venice" coronet worn by her maternal grandmother and mother and carried gardenias and white orchid.

The maid of honor was a sister of the bridegroom, Miss Hedwig Gaglietto, from Winchester, Va., and one bride's maid, Miss Elaine Sheetz of La Canada, Calif.

With friends witnessing the ceremony, Miss Barbara Ann Murray and Lt. (jg) Henry T. Mayo, II, were married in Grace Episcopal church at St. Helena, Calif., 10 Nov.

The bride, who, with her mother, flew from Hawaii for the wedding, wore a heaven-blue gown and bracelet length lace mitts. Her short blue veil was held in place by a crown of flowers, and her bridal bouquet was of pink chrysanthemums.

Matron of honor was Mrs. W. R. Hitch, wife of Comdr. Hitch. Lt. (jg) John Barnes, a shipmate of the bridegroom's on the USS Iowa, was best man.

A reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents, just off Howell Mountain Rd., near Silverado Trail.

The bride is the daughter of Capt. Raymond Wilkins Murray, (MC), USN, and Mrs. Murray, her father being stationed at Pearl Harbor. The bride is a graduate of the Jacob Tome Institute, near Baltimore. She has been attending the University of Hawaii.

The bridegroom is the son of Col. George Mayo, USA-Ret., and Mrs. Mayo, who have made their home in St. Helena for the past year. He was graduated from the Academy in 1945, and presently is on the USS Iowa, stationed at Hunters Point, San Francisco, Calif. His grandfather, Adm. Henry T. Mayo, was commander-in-chief of the U. S. Lieutenant Hering graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in the Class of 1947 and is stationed in Augsburg, Germany.

In the presence of many distinguished guests, representing Army, Navy, Diplomatic and Civilian personnel of the Allied Powers, Miss Mary Katharine Tan-sey, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Patrick H. Tansey, of Washington, D. C., became the bride of Lt. William George Devens, son of Mrs. William George Devens and the late Col. Devens of Arlington, Va. The candlelight ceremony was performed by Chaplain John Brucker in the Saint Luke's Chapel, Tokyo, Japan, at four o'clock in the afternoon of 1 Dec. After the low nuptial mass the Apostolic Delegate, Archbishop Paolo Morella imparted the Papal blessing on the couple.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride was lovely in her gown of white satin, made with a high neckline, long sleeves tapering to points over the hands and a fitted bodice draped in the design of sunburst. Tiny satin buttons extended the length of the front to meet the folds of material which encircled the hips and gathered into a long train. Her veil of Brussels lace was caught with a coronet of rosebuds and she carried a bridal bouquet of rosebuds and baby's breath circling a center orchid.

Attending the bride were Miss Nanette de la Chevalerie, maid of honor and the bridesmaids, Misses Mary Lee Hodge and Charlotte Gercke.

A wedding of wide interest to Service people was that of Miss Sarah Elizabeth Donaldson to Lt. David Saltonstall Mallott, which was solemnized at the Post Chapel, Ft. Riley, Kans., 24 Nov. Captain Barrett, Episcopal Chaplain of the 10th Infantry Division, conducted the ceremony.

The ushers, Lts. Leslie D. Carter, Jr., William Caldwell, Jr., Robert Marshall, Robert Taylor, James McCray and Stephen Griffith, were all classmates of the bridegroom. Miss Jane Vreeland of Paterson, N. J., and Miss Dorothy Jane Morris of Washington, D. C., were bridesmaids. Mrs. John W. Donaldson of West Point, N. Y., and Mrs. Leslie D. Carter, Jr., of Ft. Riley, were the matrons of honor. Miss Florence Colgate Rumbough of New York was the maid of honor.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Col. T. Q. Donaldson, Jr., was beautiful in a satin gown, basque style, long tight fitting sleeves, full skirt ending in a long train, trimmed with an heirloom lace bertha. She wore her mother's veil of Brussels lace, halo style and extending to the end of the train. Her bouquet was a copy of her mother's, a white orchid surrounded by white carnations and sweet peas, and the groom's gift, a string of pearls, was her only ornament.

Following the ceremony the bride and groom and attendants were driven to the reception at the Officers' Club in old Cavalry style in the Hunt Tally-Ho. A string orchestra played during the reception. The five-tiered cake was cut by the bride with her grandfather's saber. Later in the evening the bride and groom left on their honeymoon. They will be at home early in December at Ft. Riley, Kans., where the groom is a student in the Ground General School. He graduated from West Point in June 1948.

Financial Digest

The settlement of the longshoremen's strikes on the East and West Coasts has eased the concern that was having a depressing effect on business, particularly foreign trade. Markets for grains and other commodities included in the Marshall Plan aid for Europe had been adversely affected by the work stoppage, and the resumption of shipping was reflected in firmer prices for these items.

The stock market which had recovered somewhat from the post-election slump declined again on reports of a probable fourth round of wage increases. The international conventions of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations indicated that strong bids for more pay will be made on the expiration of current contracts.

The Department of Labor reports that 60,134,000 workers were gainfully employed in the United States during October, a number close to the all-time record. The prospect for the continued average employment of about 60,000,000 throughout next year appear to be excellent.

For the fourth consecutive week department store sales showed a decline in volume from the comparable period of last year. Merchants still expect a good Christmas trade, but are revising their optimistic predictions that it would be ten per cent higher than last year. They will now be satisfied if it does not fall below the excellent business of the 1947 holiday season.

DO YOU WANT CAPITAL AND EARNINGS?

of course! — who doesn't want financial security?

Here is a sound, safe and highly efficient method by which you can accomplish this purpose.

The following brief description presents a time tested, sound and highly successful method of building capital and earnings through savings. Its objective may be to augment your retirement income, to establish an educational fund for your children, to buy or build a home or for any other long term requirement.

The plan involves the regular application of a fixed number of dollars monthly, $25.00 or more, to the purchase of certain diversified investment funds, plus the application of dividends received toward additional purchases. Thus, three basic principles of successful investing are embodied, viz., 1. wide diversification; 2. averaging of costs and 3. compounding of dividends.

Tabulated below are the results of a plan involving $25.00 monthly over an eight (8) year period from Jan. 1, 1939 to Dec. 31, 1946:

Your capital would have paid in	$2,400.00
.....	5,020.25*
The increase would have amounted to	10%
.....	2,620.25

* Includes $1,595.37 in dividends received and re-invested.

If you had stopped making payments after Dec. 31, 1946 you could have expected an annual income of approximately $200.00, equal to over 8% on the total amount of your monthly payments.

FEATURES—

- No signing of contract or agreement necessary.
- Payments may be increased, decreased or stopped at your discretion.
- You can receive the total current value of your accumulated investment at any time immediately at your request.

Through this plan you would be buying capital which would remain intact, not just an equity or life protection either of which would be lost upon the stoppage of monthly payments.

"There is no Substitute for Building Capital and Earnings Through Regular and Continuous Saving of a Portion of Current Income."

As firm reference we suggest that you write or call any San Antonio bank or Mr. E. W. Conley, Vice-President National Bank of Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Tex.

The Maritime Commission opened bids in Washington, D. C., on 1 Dec. for the construction of the proposed 48,000-ton superliner for the United States Lines trans-Atlantic service. The original invitation to bid was presented to the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the New York Shipbuilding Corporation, the only yards with facilities capable of building a commercial ship of the size required. The new luxury liner would provide for some 1,000 passengers and would be the largest and fastest ever built in the United States.

Low bid for construction of the queen of the American Merchant Marine was submitted by the Newport News Shipbuilding & Drydock Co., Newport News, Va., which offered a figure of $67,350,000.

The United States Lines will operate the vessel when it is completed. The Maritime Commission will subsidize about 45 per cent of the costs, it was reported this week.

An increase in the total size of the reserve fleet was indicated in the 1 Nov. compilation of reserve fleet anchorage figures released by the Maritime Commission. According to the report there were 1901 vessels laid up as of 1 Nov. compared with 1818 on 1 Oct. and 1677 vessels on 1 Sept.

AF Officer Career Briefs

Editor, ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL:

What action, if any, will be taken by proper Air Force authority to correct injustice to officers that may have been caused by their officer career briefs having been incomplete, out-of-date, lacking important information or containing false or misleading information, when being utilized by Selection Boards as the principal guide in selecting officers for promotion? (When the discrepancies are discovered?)

The Selection System as such is recognized as a good thing for all concerned but, when officers are represented by a brief of their record, that record must be accurate, uniform, up-to-date, and contain no false or misleading information. Further, officers passed over should be furnished some indication as to the reason to enable them to correct the shortcomings.

It just doesn't seem possible that the intent of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947 was to deny any individual some recourse if and when honest errors, omissions or discrepancies of a major nature in an officer career brief were discovered that, had the record been accurate when utilized by the selection board, the individual concerned might not have been passed over.

Concerned

Retired Enlisted Pay

Editor, ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL:

I think the enlisted retired pay is too low now with prices as high as they are, especially for a man with a family. I suggest that the retired law be amended so that a retired man from any of the Armed Services would draw a family allowance, say a married man with a wife only would draw the same as one on active duty now, and an additional allowance be granted for each child under 18 years of age. It is almost impossible to educate a child on present pay.

A Retired Enlisted Man

Air Force Personnel

Editor, ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL:

Thanks for your fine editorial of 27 Nov., taking Air Force headquarters to task for concealing the promotion list of Regular Air Force Officers. Those of us in the field can ascribe only one reason to such action: fear of the discontent that would be aroused when officers realize how their standing has been jumbled up by the selection boards.

There has been so much secrecy and concealment in connection with the new selection system that we are all suspicious of what goes on. Press hard for publicity—fresh air always helps any subject!

Proposed Relative List

Editor, ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL:

The official Army attitude towards the problem of the relative standing of Integrated Officers on the Relative List seems to go in cycles. At the end of war, 90 per cent of all officers were convinced of one thing: Temporary rank established as a result of the exigencies of war was all screwed up as far as true relative ability was concerned. 100 per cent of all officers agreed that the Army had not followed a regular, equitable promotion system; hence 90 per cent of the officers believed that, to restore things to some semblance of order and for the best interests of the future Army, relative seniority should be restored as closely as possible to true relative total ability.

Accordingly, the Integration Program of 1946 was carried out. To get the best possible officers for the greatly expanded Army, careers were offered to non-regular officers on the basis of competitive professional examinations and personal examinations by boards of experienced Regular Army officers. These officers were assured of a career in which their relative standing would be determined, not by the temporary rank resulting from the haphazard system of World War II, but on the basis of their total relative ability, which took into account their years of experience in civilian pursuits. The Army bound itself, therefore, to give weight to all experience.

In 1947 and 1948 a great hue and cry was raised by the small percentage of officers who wished to cling to their war booty and perpetuate their good fortune on the basis of reward, not merit. Moreover, by their temporary rank, they were in the most favorable position to influence policy at the upper levels, hence the case of the integrated officer suffered during this period, as evidenced by personnel acts, and especially as evidenced by the selections of the First Selection Boards. No integrated officer, regardless of his background, was selected for permanent Lieutenant colonel if his temporary rank was less than Lieutenant colonel.

Whereas every Army officer can relate countless instances in which officers of mediocre ability have risen to rank ridiculously out of proportion to their obvious abilities, while other officers, for the very reason that they had exceptional ability, were confined in positions in which it was impossible for them to rise to equitable rank; on the other hand, none of the mediocre type officers have ever been known to affirm that he had attained his high rank through a fluke, and therefore should, for the best interests of the Army, be reduced to a more equitable rank. Not one of the 10 per cent to date has pointed out the fact that among these integrated officers of lower temporary ranks there might be some officers of exceptionally fine background from the viewpoint of usefulness to the Army of 1948, such that impartial observers would be puzzled to understand how such officers could be passed over. The only persons who discount the value of background and experience are lieutenant colonels whose sole experience was gained in WW II. Because such officers can visualize merit only as a matter of temporary rank, they overrate their own value, and underrate that of those under them.

The morale of integrated officers suffered a set-back as a result of the interim selections. Now they will carefully scrutinize the first selections of 1949 to see if integrated officers of exceptional ability are passed over because they were unfortunate enough to "hold positions of lower responsibility in WW II."

It is emphasized that it is imperative that all relative ranks be arranged in accordance with the Permanent Promotion List. To do otherwise would be contrary to the Personnel Act of 1947, and defeat the very reason for having a Permanent Promotion List, thus causing a great lowering of morale of a large body of officers.

More on Relative List

Editor, ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL:

Reference letter by a Lt. Col., FA, USA in your 13 Nov. issue. Seldom have I read a letter anywhere which disregards the facts so completely.

In his first paragraph, he says that hundreds and thousands of less capable newly appointed Regular Officers have been placed far ahead of Pre-Integration Regular Army Officers on the Promotion List.

I say that those integrated officers were chosen from combat-tested highly-qualified individuals, who were picked over others in the fiercest competition that anyone has had to overcome to enter the Regular Officer category.

Selection was based on degree of education, character, combat efficiency, intelligence, physical condition, approval by a Board of high-ranking Regular Officers, who saw the candidate in person, and on the officer's overall record. He had to be good to be chosen.

He was not picked because a hometown Senator or Congressman knew him, not in competition with a few others based on a competitive examination, not on four years of cadet training, but he was picked because he had already proven himself. That's how this "less capable" officer entered the Regulars.

In paragraph two, the Lieutenant Colonel says that great numbers of Pre-Integration Officers would leave the Army if they could offset the time they have lost in getting started in civilian occupations. That I doubt very much. The Service would be better off without those who feel that way. How about the integrated officer? During the war, didn't he lose time in which he could get started in a civilian occupation?

Integrated Officers entered the Army

knowing they had to fight to get ahead, and they're willing to do it. Things aren't exactly automatic in the Army today, and perhaps that is what worries the Lieutenant Colonel.

In paragraph three, he states that great numbers of Pre-Integration Regular Officers are to be stripped of relative rank attained through displayed ability prior to and during combat, and further subordinated to great numbers who are less capable as evidenced by the positions of responsibility they held during World War II. As General McAuliffe said, "Nuts." It is no secret in the Army that during World War II officers more often obtained a high relative rank based on "being in the right position at the right time" than by any other means.

There are hundreds of Captains today who fought a large part of the War as platoon and company commanders, and had no opportunity whatsoever to attain a higher rank. I first went overseas in August, 1942, and while fighting as a platoon commander in Tunisia, I heard from former Corporals and Sergeants in my Company who went to OCS and became temporary Majors in the States because they happened to be there when promotions were a dime a dozen.

My heart bleeds for this Lieutenant Colonel who may get shoved down a notch in relative rank. He wouldn't like to revert to Captain for a while and try to feed and clothe his family on my salary, or would he? I don't like to see any officer lose a rank once attained, but I too think some of the existing inequalities should be surveyed and analyzed.

As a non-Regular Officer, I received some Excellent but mostly Superior ratings. I have a Masters Degree from one of the better known universities of the country, and have been through the Command and General Staff School stage of my Army education. I am serving with the General Staff Corps at the present time. There is nothing in my record which indicates to me that I cannot perform higher duties, but here I am a Captain, performing the same work as Lieutenant Colonels. I wish I had a little of that relative rank to worry about.

Navy League Meets

Frank A. Hecht, President of the Navy League of the United States, was reelected to that office this week as the League held its forty-fifth annual meeting in New York City.

National vice-presidents for 1949, all of whom were reelected, were Winthrop W. Aldrich, Ferdinand Eberstadt, Thomas S. Gates, Arthur S. Carpenter, George R. Brown, Charles Davies, Sinclair Weeks, Irving Seaman, Charles E. Moore and Edward J. Bermingham.

Principal speaker at the annual dinner of the League, held in New York City on 1 Dec., was Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan. Mr. Sullivan discussed the results of unification and told the Navy League members that it is working. However, he said, there cannot be "any quick and easy solution to the many varied problems." The Secretary pointed out the close cooperation with which the Air Force and Navy have been conducting the Berlin Airlift as an example of smooth operation of unification.

Other speakers who appeared before the League included Rear Adm. John W. Reeves, Chief of Naval Air Training; Vice Adm. William M. Fechteler, Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Personnel; and Rear Adm. Richard D. Whitehead, Chief of Naval Air Reserve Training.

A drive to increase the League's membership from its present 10,000 to twice that number was announced by Mr. Hecht. Establishment of a committee on public information was also announced. This committee will disseminate authoritative information about the Navy.

The League adopted a resolution to take "a positive and constructive stand on all policies affecting the Navy, either for or against any policy either by Congress or otherwise."

Sports Front

IT was a great football game the two academies put on last Saturday, and the adjective is not used loosely. A hypothetical spectator going in cold, with no knowledge of either team or its record, but with merely a love for football, would still have found it a great game.

Truth is indeed stranger than fiction. Before the game, all the sports writers (this one included) and supposed experts had said that Army would wallop the daylights out of the poor Navy squad, individually and collectively. They hedged by reminding one and all of the 1948 thriller, but that was more in the line of providing interesting copy than in any hope that such a thing would come to pass. Many of them, indeed, were bemoaning the fate that exposed them to the climatic uncertainties of a late November day in Philadelphia.

We know by now that everyone was wrong on all counts. Navy did more than pull out a tie. They outgamed Army in every phase of the contest except those relative to punting, as the Cadets managed to kick farther and run Navy's kicks back farther. Even the weather was perfect.

To those who had seen both teams play a representative number of games this season, it was apparent that Navy was up for the encounter, and Army was just the opposite. There have been a number of reasons advanced for West Point's lack of verve. Bobby Jack Stuart was injured. Ditto Gil Stephenson. The whole academy was smitten with a touch of dysentery, and the football team, by coming down to Philadelphia a day early, was unable to receive the dispensary attention the rest of the cadets got.

Doubtless these were all contributing factors, but in our book it was overconfidence that cost West Point its perfect season. It would have been miraculous, in fact, if the Army team had not been overconfident.

All the scoring was after sustained drives. Navy struck first, halfway through the first quarter. Starting from their own twelve the second time they got their hands on the ball, they moved down the field in short order, helped no end by Pete Williams' 59-yard gallop to the Army 12. This, by the way, was Navy's longest individual gain of the year. Baysinger scored on a sneak from the 2-yard line.

The Blue and Gold kept knocking on the door and got deep into Army territory again by the end of the first quarter, but Baysinger was smothered on two successive pass attempts and Navy's effectiveness for the half was at an end.

Now it was Army's turn. Harold Schultz, replacement for Stuart, and Arnold Galiffa sparked the first scoring march, the former on the ground and the latter in the air. Schultz racked up the tally, banging into the middle for a 7-yard plunge. Before the half ended, Army took the lead, as they swept 53 yards on four plays with Rudy Cosentino providing the clincher. At intermission, with the Cadets on the long end of a 14-7 score, the chalk players who had spotted Navy 20 points were nodding sagely.

Army missed a possible chance to sew up the game when, in the third quarter, they blocked a Baysinger punt and took over on the Navy 38. However, three incomplete passes gave Navy the ball on its own 19, and they proceeded to confound observers by going all the way to the goal just before the third period ended. Baysinger's passes made most of the distance, and Hawkins provided the final two yards.

Three minutes and nine plays later, Army had scored again. Galiffa demonstrated the field generalship that has made Army so rugged all year by pulling two bootleg plays. One of them set up Army's third touchdown, and the other one made it. By this time West Point adherents were willing to settle for a one-touchdown, or even a one-point win, but Navy had other ideas.

Bill Hawkins, with a bad shoulder and various minor ailments, sparked the final tying drive. Blocking, decoying or plunging ferociously, the big boy came of age, after three years of college ball.

U. S. COAST GUARD

FOllowing an exhaustive study by a board of officers, the Coast Guard has determined that the Turkey Point Light Station at the mouth of the Elk River on Chesapeake Bay and the Loveladies Island Light Boat Station near Barnegat City, N. J., are no longer of value and should be declared surplus.

Before taking this action, the Coast Guard studied the value of the two stations, both from a standpoint of current possibilities and of their possible use in event of war.

Coast Guard personnel officials report that from 1 Jan. to 31 Oct. 91 per cent of chief petty officers and 79 per cent of petty officers first class whose enlistments expired signed up for additional service the day following discharge.

The Chief of Naval Operations and Capt. Sir Robert Stirling-Hamilton, Senior Naval Liaison Officer of the United Kingdom's High Commissioner's Office, have sent letters of appreciation to the Coast Guard Commandant praising Coast Guard participation in the extensive air search for a Navy aircraft forced down in Manitoba, Canada early in September. A similar dispatch was received also from the Royal Canadian Air Force Headquarters.

The Secretary of the Treasury announced this week that the 17th Coast Guard District in Alaska will be reestablished. The action came after a board of officers had inspected the area and surveyed requirements and after Secretary Snyder visited Alaska during the summer.

It is reported that personnel to staff the district, including its commander, have not yet been selected. It is expected that the district, whose activities are now under direction of the 13th Coast Guard District, with headquarters at Seattle, Wash., will be opened by 1 July 1949.

Headquarters for the 17th district will be at Juneau. The district was disestablished on 1 July 1947.

regiment. This commander, if he approves the application, will forward it by endorsement to the school. Those applicants not assigned to regularly organized units should forward applications direct to their Regular Army instructor.

Every commissioned and enlisted person who plans to make a career of the Army or a lifetime vocation (in the case of civilian component personnel) should avail himself of the educational advantages offered him without cost through the medium of the Army Extension Course Program. Army Extension Courses constitute one of the easiest and best ways for Reserve and National Guard officers to keep their commissions active, earn promotions, prepare for greater responsibilities in the event of emergencies, and ultimately to qualify for retirement under the Army and Air Force Vitalization and Retirement Equalization Act of 1948. Regular Army officers need the instruction afforded by Army Extension Courses to fill in gaps which may exist in their military training. Enlisted and warrant officer personnel are encouraged to enroll in Army Extension Courses in order to acquire a well-rounded military education, to prepare for commissions, and for advancement in their selected career field.

We acquire knowledge by several methods. Experience, schools, and self study are three. Life is just too short for most of us to learn by experience everything that a well-grounded soldier should know. We must fill in the gaps in our military education in some way, and Army Extension Courses are one of the easiest and best ways. All soldiers may not be able to attend their branch school, but through Army Extension Courses the branch schools are available to every ambitious, conscientious officer and enlisted person.
